Debate Closure Fails CCF Fight Goes On

By PETER BRUTON

Health Minister Eric Martin was forced to go home sick early this morning after an all-out opposition attack over the minister's refusal to table the American Psychiatric Association report on B.C. mental health services.

The sensational development came shortly before 1 a.m. after an impasse had been reached during debate on the minister's salary estimates.

The debate saw Premier Bennett try — and fail — to force closure of the discussion a few minutes before his minister was incapacitated.

Premier Bennett charged that CCF leader Strachan had forced a filibuster even though he had been told Mr. Martin was not feeling well early yesterday afternoon.

Minister Falls Ill, Gives Up

"You will rue this night," he told Mr. Strachan.

Health Minister Martin adamantly refused to table the AMA report until his estimates had passed — a move which would have prevented opposition discussion of the report's recommendations this session.

It is now virtually certain the session cannot conclude today.

The sitting, which had been thought would be a quiet one, saw the frayed tempers of members snap once or twice during the evening.

WILD MELÉE

Premier Bennett, in trying to force closure despite his oft-quoted remark that "there is no closure in B.C." was ruled out of order after a wild-shouting melee shortly before 12:03 a.m.

During the fireworks Gordon Dowding (CCF—Burnaby) was told he would be named if he refused to obey the ruling of the chairman once again.

ANGRY PREMIER

Premier Bennett, returning to the house after an absence, was apparently angered over the fact that the estimates had not yet been passed.

He interrupted CCF leader Robert Strachan, who was making a point of order, and said: "Mr. Chairman, I move the motion now be put."

Under such a motion there can be no debate. The government majority would have carried the day for Premier Bennett.

"Utterly shameful," shouted CCF leader Strachan. "This is a thoroughly shameful action. Utterly shocking... disgusting."

"Wasting the people's money," shot back Premier Bennett.

ORDER SOUGHT

"You should be ashamed," said CCF's Randolph Harding. "The great filibuster, the great filibuster," said the premier.

Everyone seemed to be on the feet at once and acting chairman William Murray said:

(SC—Prince Rupert) banged for order.

Mr. Dowding tried to make a point of order but was told to sit down. He refused to do so.

"Who do you think you are?" said Premier Bennett.

"Who do you think you are?" countered Randolph Harding.

"Who do you think you are?" said the premier again.

"Who do you think you are?" repeated Mr. Harding.

Other CCFers charged there were special rules in the house for the government.

OLD SAYING

"It is abundantly clear that the old saying that a government can say when a session will start but the opposition says when it will end is correct," said Dan Campbell (SC—Comox).

Earlier in the day the opposition had said they expected quick passage of Health Minister Martin's estimates.

But the minister's refusal to table before his estimates had passed angered the opposition.

ONE COPY

It was learned that while there was only one copy of the report available the department has prepared a detailed précis of the main recommendations.

The report was written by Dr. Matthew Ross after a province-wide survey of present mental health services in B.C.

CRITICISM SEEN

Observers believe that the minister does not want the opposition to learn of critical aspects of these services until after his estimates have passed — and the estimates provide the only remaining place where such a discussion can be held this session.

Gordon Dowding (CCF—Burnaby) said the House could not possibly agree to the passing of the minister's salary vote until they had seen a copy.

"I think it is reprehensible," he said. "You are asking us to vote blind. It is an insult to this legislature."

SUM CITED

He said one vote in the departmental estimates called for the expenditure of $100,000 to implement recommendations in the Ross report and yet the opposition didn't know what these recommendations were.

"You better get a messenger and get the report and send it over to us right now," he said.

West Holds Firm As Peril Grows In Laos Issue

BANGKOK, Thailand—The Western powers Friday put up a firm front in a move to halt fighting in the Southeast Asian Kingdom of Laos and anxiously awaited a reply from Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

These steps came as a threat of another Korean-type war deepened with the pro-Western government of Laos reporting that troops from Communist North Viet Nam had crossed into Laos to join Laotian rebel troops in attacks against the already hard-pressed royal troops.

While both Britain and the United States left the door open for negotiation to end the fighting in Laos, there was strong evidence that the U.S. would not back down in the face of force.

Britain sent Russia a proposal that a cease-fire be called in Laos and negotiations for a settlement be opened under a three-power commission with Canada, India and Poland as members. The three-power commission was first set up by the 1954 Geneva conference to settle differences in Indochina.

NEW INTERVENTION

In Laos, Royal troops were reported to have withdrawn from the town of Kam Keut, 40 miles east of the Thailand frontier. The government announced nine battalions of North Vietnamese troops had opened a "massive new intervention" against the Royal troops.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—

President Kennedy yesterday won the powerful support of neutralist Indian Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru in his efforts to get Kremlin acceptance of a truce in the boiling Laotian crisis. Disclosure that Kennedy had sent a successful personal bid to the Indian leader came as Moscow sources reported that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev would discuss the Laotian situation with seven other heads of European Communist states Tuesday. A Red Chinese representative will be on hand as an observer.

LONDON (Reuters)—

Britain said Friday there is a "good chance" Russia would accept its peace formula for Laos. The Earl of Home, Britain's foreign secretary, expressed confidence that a political settlement will be reached before he leaves Sunday by air for a Southeast Asia Treaty Organization conference in Bangkok.

Reds Try to Choke UN in Congo With Money Noose

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The Soviet Union Friday opened a campaign to kill the United Nations Congo operation by chopping its financial lifeline.

Soviet delegate A. A. Roschin said the question of financing the Congo force should come under the 11-member Security Council—in which Russia has a veto—and not under the 99-member General Assembly.

REFUSED TO PAY

The Soviet Union has all along refused to pay any Congo costs and has demanded withdrawal of the force. Friday's blast was regarded as another attempt to bring down UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld.

Launching his attack in the financial committee, Roschin in passing charged that Hammarskjöld had usurped the functions of the security council by deciding what troops should be sent to the Congo.

RUSSIA OBJECTED

Hammarskjöld had sent Canadian, Swedish and Irish forces even though Russia as a member of the security council objected to the sending of forces from Western blocs. "For instance, Canadian troops."

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI)—Five West European diplomats yesterday were ordered expelled from Stanleyville by self-styled Premier Antoine Gizenga because their governments do not recognize his Soviet-supported regime.

B.C. Would Do It Under Guarantee

Premier Bennett yesterday came up with a startling new proposal for the development of the Columbia River power project—either Ottawa can build the $450,000,000 scheme on its own or B.C. will do it with a federal guarantee that the cost of power will not exceed 4.25 mills.

The proposal was made to federal Finance Minister Donald Fleming who flew here for the long-awaited financing negotiations. (See also Pages 2 and 13.)

Meanwhile, in Ottawa, Prime Minister Diefenbaker told the House of Commons that the Columbia River treaty definitely will be submitted to parliament for ratification but the date has not been determined.

The possibility of a joint financing of the huge power development with Ottawa and B.C. sharing costs from the start was also discussed at the meeting, Premier Bennett told the legislature yesterday.

He stressed the fact that the talks were friendly but added that there would be no formal or definite agreement between the two governments at the present time.

It was the first time B.C. has offered Ottawa the right to build the dams and transmission facilities on its own.

Discussions to Continue

Finance Minister Fleming said later that the discussions will continue today.

B.C.'s first proposal was:

● Ottawa would build the storage dams and transmission lines.

● Ottawa would pay "generous compensation" to those residents whose homes and property would be flooded.

● B.C. would receive the $64,000,000 U.S. payment for flood control indemnities and would keep this money forever, using only the interest payments.

● Ottawa would pay B.C. $4,000,000 for engineering studies conducted to date.

● Ottawa would guarantee "by appropriate financial measures" that the net cost of Columbia River power delivered to the Vancouver area would not exceed 4.25 mills.

● Ottawa would arrange with U.S. authorities, should any Columbia River power become surplus, to sell such power in the U.S. at a price not lower than 4.25 mills per kilowatt hour.

Ottawa has consistently stated that Columbia River power can be delivered in Vancouver for less than four mills. Now B.C. has given Ottawa extra leeway and told the federal authorities, in effect, to put up or shut up.

No Specific Comment

Mr. Fleming refused to make any specific comment on the proposals but said "very thorough" discussions had been held on all aspects.

The ownership of the entire project would revert to B.C. after 50 years or at such time as the project was paid for, whichever is the sooner.

Asked if he was surprised at this part of the proposal, Mr. Fleming told reporters: "In this political life one should never be surprised at anything."

The second proposal as outlined by Premier Bennett was:

● B.C. would build and pay for the dams and facilities on its own.

● Ottawa would have full access to engineering data and "scrutiny and approval of all contracts" in the same manner as present Trans-Canada Highway projects.

"I came here in the hope that the discussions would facilitate the earliest possible start on the Columbia development and Premier Bennett has indicated quite clearly that it is his wish also," said Mr. Fleming.

Asked if he now felt Ottawa was wrong in suggesting that B.C. was trying to hold up the Columbia development, the federal minister said: "I trust there won't be any suggestion of a delay on anyone's part. Both sides are deeply interested in progressing."

No Inferior Weapons For Canada—Harkness

REGINA (CP)—

Defence Minister Harkness said Friday night it is the policy of the government that Canadian forces should not be required to face a potential enemy with inferior weapons.

But he added that no decision will be taken on acquisition of nuclear warheads "until a satisfactory agreement on joint control of such warheads" has been worked out with the United States.

"If and when nuclear weapons are acquired by the Canadian forces, these weapons will not be used except as the Canadian government decides and in a manner approved by the Canadian government."

Mr. Harkness said in an address to the United Services Institute of Regina.

He said the Bomarc anti-aircraft missile, Honest John artillery rocket and CF-104 low level jet bomber have a nuclear capability "and they do not achieve their full potential without a nuclear warhead."

Mr. Harkness reiterated that the government has no intention of having nuclear weapons manufactured in Canada or of acquiring any kind of strategic nuclear weapon—such as a long-range missile or heavy bomber.

Fleming Loss Far Short Of Forecast

OTTAWA (CP)—With only one month left in the fiscal year Finance Minister Fleming's office Friday reported a $30,100,000 deficit at the end of February—well short of his forecast of a $206,000,000 deficit for the year ending March 31.

The sharp difference apparently means the government has some heavy spending to do before closing out the books.

Sicilians Panic at Earthquake 'Worst Since Terror of 1908'

MESSINA, Sicily (AP)—

est hit by the series of nine jolts that began before noon and lasted more than 90 minutes.

Officials at Reggio Calabria, a port of 60,000 on the Italian mainland seven miles away across Messina Strait reported less serious damage. But the panic there was the same.

Older residents of both cities could remember the terror of 1908, when 77,283 persons perished.

The first shock struck with a force that knocked the needle from the Messina observatory seismograph.

The cities have a long history of trouble, dating back to 396 B.C. when they were wrecked by the Carthaginians. Since then they have been razed by the Saracens, seized by the Normans, bombarded by the Neapolitans, badly damaged by the earthquake of 1873, destroyed by the quake of 1908 and damaged again in the Second World War.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

Many people think of themselves as everyday heroes. They tell stories in which they appear in the role of knights battling against dragons and infidels and pirates.

Their enemies are the Boss, the Customer, Sickness, Debt, Husband, Wife, Child and Inanimate Object.

"And there I was halfway down the stairs when Joe dropped his end and I had to bear the whole weight. Two hundred and fifty pounds. Well, he picked it up again, but by that time my arms were just about torn loose from their sockets. Then it was three more flights of stairs down and two more flights up."

If it's a woman listening, she's expected to make female sounds of approval and admiration.

A man is required to be amazed at the feat of strength or brain-power, whatever it is.

'I Couldn't Turn Back'

"Well, there was this big truck booming down the hill at me. Right in the middle of the road was a boy on a bicycle. On the other side was a parked car, away out in the road. I couldn't stop or turn back."

"Goodness, what did you do?" she asks, just as if she really wanted to find out.

"Threw 'er into overdrive and stamped on 'er and the old bucket whistled through the gap like a goose heading for the nesting grounds."

'That's All, Brother'

"So this dame has been giving me nothing but trouble all the time, wanting the eggs turned over and the french-fries cooked more than ordinary and oh! I tell you! just a pill. And three extra glasses of water. After all that, you know what? She eats only half the egg and stabs a cigarette in what's left of it. That's all, brother. I bang down her coffee on the table. Then you know what?"

"I go out and take off my uniform, and I throw it to the boss. 'Here, catch,' I says.

Spy Charges Killed by U.S. To Pacify Reds

CHICAGO (AP) — The United States has decided to ease friction with Russia by dropping prosecution of two men charged with spying for the Soviet Union.

Dismissal of indictments against Igor Melekh, 47, Russian employee of the United Nations secretariat in New York, and Willie Hirsch, 52, German-born artist, is conditional upon Melekh leaving the U.S. by April 17.

KENNEDY ORDER
Surprise announcement of the decision came Friday when Melekh and Hirsch appeared for arraignment before Judge Edwin Robson.

Albert Manion, assistant U.S. attorney, told the court Attorney-General Robert Kennedy ordered him to seek an order paving the way for dismissal.

NATIONAL INTERESTS
Manion told the court the step was decided upon after consultation by the attorney-general and state department officials, to serve "national and foreign policy interests of the United States."

In Washington, the state department said State Secretary Dean Rusk, active in bringing about the decision, had expressed hope that "this action would contribute to improving our position as regards the protection of United States citizens in the Soviet Union."

ALUMINUM
Giant Mill Producing For Russia

LONDON (UPI) — Russia has started production from a new giant aluminum smelter and rolling mill claimed to have an output of 1,000,000 tons of the raw metal a year.

Metal Bulletin reported yesterday. The U.S.S.R.'s total output was already higher than that of the United States and Canada combined, it said.

Report said the plant could fabricate output according to the following program: forgings 100,000 metric tons, rolled material 600,000 tons and extrusions 300,000 tons.

Russia's capacity means it will have a sizeable tonnage for export but does not intend to undermine the non-Communist world market because supplies will be devoted to supplying metal-hungry Communist states.

Control Your Own Destiny Fleming Tells Provinces

New tax-sharing proposals of the federal government will equalize opportunity for all Canadians, and give the provinces "greater flexibility and control over their own destiny," Finance Minister Donald Fleming said here yesterday.

In an address to the Canadian Club Mr. Fleming said Ottawa's proposals — centred on a shift of personal income taxing to the provinces — will help to strengthen them, the provinces and, through them, the fiscally hard-pressed municipalities.

STARTS APRIL 1
The proposed new five-year agreement, starting April 1, 1962, rests upon "the sound principles of financial responsibility, the independence of the various levels of government and the separation of powers under the constitution," he said.

"The provinces, in the aggregate, are in the current year deriving over 30 per cent of their revenues from the federal treasury," and so were offered the opportunity last fall to levy their own taxes.

OLD ADAGE
"Not only was this in accord with our constitutional system but it is an old adage of public finance that the government which spends the money ought to raise the money," the finance minister said.

One reason the government chose to withdraw from income taxing rather than corporation income taxing, he explained, was that corporation profits are generally regarded as more national in scope and origin than personal incomes.

PERSONAL TAXES
Corporation taxes also provide a better instrument for guiding the national economy than personal income taxes.

The present agreement diverts to the provinces some $800,000,000 in tax-rental payments—representing 13 per cent of federal personal income tax collections.

New Tax-Sharing Plan

The new proposal would increase by 1966 the share of the provinces up to 20 per cent of personal income tax revenue, one-fifth of all corporation income tax and one-half of the estate tax. Within these limits the provinces could set their own tax at whatever rate they choose.

Mr. Fleming also said the federal government's offer to act as collector for the provincial income taxes would ensure uniformity across Canada and prevent double taxation.

The federal government's proposals, he said, "will give new vitality to the Canadian partnership" of Ottawa and the provinces.

Elusive Mischief-Maker Real Danger About Colds

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, MD

"Dear Dr. Molner: Are the 'cold vaccine tablets' now being advertised effective? Two tablets weekly is supposed to build immunity against cold and sinus infections. I am in the public a great deal and subject to colds.—S.M."

There's a big "secret" about colds. The severe ravages of the common cold aren't usually from the cold itself. They are from what we call "secondary infections."

The cold—if it really is one, and not the beginning of flu or some other similar but more severe ailment—doesn't do a great deal of damage, however uncomfortable you may be from sniffles.

MORE LIKELY

The cold inflames the mucous areas, leaves them raw and sensitive and more likely to fall victim to some other infection, generally of some "coccal" type, which then invades nose, sinus, bronchial tubes, lungs.

It is at this stage that drugs capable of combating the "coccal" germs can do some good. And we do have such drugs. They don't do a thing to prevent or alleviate the original cold, but they do combat the germs which invade in the wake of the cold.

'Vaccines' Don't Exist

CAN HELP

This is the way in which some of the better medications can be of help.

Colds, by all evidence acquired so far, are caused by viruses, not by bacteria. We don't have any drugs which will combat viruses. We do, however, have vaccines which will help give the body immunity against certain viruses—in some cases.

Here's the catch: Before you can make such a vaccine, you have to capture some of the virus and use it as the basis on which the vaccine is built.

SLIP EASILY

The cold virus, however, is an elusive little mischief-maker and apparently can slip easily through even such things as porcelain filters in a laboratory. We can't isolate them and then grow them in laboratory cultures and use them to make vaccines.

"Dear Mr. Molner: Some medicine labels carry this warning, 'Do not take in case of kidney disease.' Is diabetes classed as a kidney disease?—P.G."

No.

Mrs. F.J.C.: In a great many cases, migraine headaches tend to ease or go away as we get along in years—but wise treatment and thoughtful co-operation by the patient nearly always can help a great deal at any time.

'Hen' of Walk

Wren Tops Tars

More than a few sailors' mouths dropped open last night when they heard they had been outdone by a girl.

Cock of the Walk Trophy, awarded annually for the best all-around hand at HMCS Malahat, Victoria's naval reserve division, was won by Wren Pat Burch, 1179 Lockley.

Wren Burch was presented with a trophy by Commodore P. D. Taylor, commanding officer naval divisions, when he inspected Malahat's ship company at HMCS Naden drill shed.

Commodore Taylor congratulated the division on reaching an all-time high for enrollment, in excess of 200 officers, men and Wrens.

If Communists capture wedge-shaped Laos they are poised to split and conquer four adjacent nations, Burma, Cambodia, Thailand and South Viet Nam, as shown in the above map, and in position to strike south to Sumatra and Indonesia.

All Southeast Asia

Backward Laos Springboard For Red Grab

By BEN PRICE

Associated Press Staff Writer

Many a North American must be asking himself today: "Why should I care about Laos?"

By anybody's standards Laos is a backward, landlocked country of 2,000,000 people. As nations go, it can barely qualify as one. Most of its people are illiterate and some haven't the foggiest notion of nationalism.

But as a landlocked country abutting Red China on its northern border, Laos is like a wedge. If the Communists can drive their wedge deep enough, the entire area is split apart.

Laos touches on four nations which are non-Communist—Cambodia, Burma, Thailand and South Viet Nam.

A Communist Laos would provide an ideal springboard for any Red attempts to seize these countries and, ultimately, all of Southeast Asia, piecemeal.

The fall of Southeast Asia would substantially outflank the subcontinent of India with its 400,000,000 people, opening them to Communist blackmail on the north and east.

For the free world, vital strategic supplies—rubber, tin from Malaya, and rice for example—would be gone.

Southeast Asia as a whole is a food-surplus area even though vast sections are uninhabited. Communist control would give Red China room for expansion by the teeming millions and ensure a greater food supply.

The Communists also would be a mere puddle jump from oil-rich Indonesia.

In the end, the question becomes: At what point does the United States draw a line and say the Communists can go no farther?

Many military men believe the Communist goal to be eventual isolation of the United States in a hostile world.

The possibility of another Korean-war type clash between the United States and Red China is not too remote if the U.S. decides the line must be drawn now.

Monty's Memory False On Dieppe—Brigadier

LONDON (CP)—A British brigadier says Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery's memoirs "played him false" in describing the planning behind the ill-fated raid on Dieppe. Brig. Bernard Fergusson, in a 400-page history of wartime combined operations called The Watery Maze, recalls the "curious and fateful" decision to proceed with the Dieppe raid Aug. 19, 1942, without an early attacking force of bombers.

Lord Montgomery is quoted in his memoirs: "I should not myself have agreed... The demoralization of the enemy defence by preliminary bombing was essential..."

Fergusson says: "Far from not agreeing with the change, he was in the chair at the meeting where the decision was taken; and he is not on record in the minutes as having demurred."

There were some 4,000 casualties, mostly Canadian, in the raid.

Long-Time Grocer Ernest Jones Dies

Pioneer Victoria grocer Ernest Brierley Jones died suddenly at his home Thursday at the age of 82.

A native of England, Mr. Jones arrived in Victoria in 1889 opening his first grocery store—E. B. Jones grocery—at Cook and North Park around the turn of the century.

He remained in business until 1946, retired for seven years, then opened Foodland at Cook and Sutlej, remaining in business until 1958.

He served in numerous capacities at Metropolitan United Church and was Sunday School supervisor at Fairfield United Church for many years.

He leaves his widow Bertha, at home at 2047 Carnarvon Street; a daughter, Mrs. J. (Dorothy May) Blackhall, Westview, B.C.; one son, Allan E. B. Jones, Victoria; eight grandchildren; two sisters, Mrs. Jack Scott and Mrs. Ethel Harris, Victoria; five nephews and two nieces.

Bren Gun Shoot Planned Sunday

Members of 153 Company RCASC and some of the B.C. Independent Medium Battery will take part in a Bren gun shoot Sunday from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at Hea's range.

Capt. L. S. Dunn will be in charge.

It's 'Louse' As House Says Laos

WASHINGTON (UPI)—In his news conference Thursday night President Kennedy referred to Laos as 'Louse'.

Reporters asking the questions called it Louse, one syllable. A call to the Laotian embassy brought this response from the charge d'affaires: "No! No! No! Not Lay'-ahs. Louse as in house."

Legislation by Exhaustion

BRITISH Columbia last year re-elected the government that, as its campaign posters said, "gets things done". True to its claim, Premier Bennett's Social Credit government certainly has got things done in the last few weeks, particularly in the last ten days. But how it has got them done is, or ought to be, of concern to everyone in the province.

"Legislation by exhaustion," members of the Legislative Assembly call it. Legislation by driving on and on through the night, wearying body and mind. Legislation by keeping the most important and controversial business until drooping legislators are in the final, battering rush of the session.

This is not a new political device, nor the private property of Mr. Bennett's government. Nor can one be so naive as to think governments will suddenly become so virtuous as to stop using it.

But wherever and whenever it is used, it is deplorable.

The people elect their representatives, government and opposition alike—not knowing who will be which until after the vote—to legislate wisely and well for them; the government proposing, the whole assembly disposing. They have the right to expect that the assembly will have time for study, time for thought and time for sound argument. They have the right to expect that the opposition will act as watchdog and public conscience of the House, and may sometimes sway the government with reason, or catch a mistake.

But a watchdog with bleary eyes is not much of a watchdog; a conscience with dwindling consciousness is not much of a conscience, and sleepy minds are not always amenable to reason.

When the CCF sought to avoid an all-night sitting Wednesday by moving to adjourn at 11.30 p.m., it fell in for a round of government abuse: "Addleheaded," said the attorney-general; "A bunch of stupidity," said the highways minister.

Addleheaded many a member may understandably have been, under the circumstances, and not only on the opposition side.

But addleheaded it is not, to seek to do the people's business properly.

Nothing New

ANOTHER retired military man, this time a former engineer colonel, is dissatisfied with the defence department he served for 30 years. This is nothing new, nor in general should it be held against him. While in uniform military officers are not free to give unrestrained vent to criticism, and Mr. Harkness is wrong to cite it as a case of biting the hand that fed him.

Colonel McTavish is now a civilian and thus at liberty to express himself to the full. The wisdom of his views is something else again. So many retired army experts speak up these days, but they don't all agree on their pet theories. And if the professionals are at variance it should not be wondered if the political, civilian, defence chiefs find defence problems difficult of solution these days.

The colonel says, in rather a sweeping manner, that the $2 billion spent yearly on the armed forces is wasted. Not wholly, surely. He would scarcely agree on the precise point that this means his own employment was a waste of time and money. If he did it is surprising he stayed at the job so long.

More importantly, however, Colonel McTavish advises Canada to get out of all existing alliances and place her existing forces at the disposal of the United Nations. This is one of those nice-sounding generalities that in fact is meaningless. Mr. Harkness aptly replies that if we didn't have armed forces we couldn't then supply them to the UN.

In any case the UN is not organized so that it might have a standing army. It has been painfully obvious in recent UN developments how difficult it is for the world body to raise even a temporary force to act in a police role. As for its likelihood of ever creating a permanent force, even if the whole Canadian army was transferred to it tomorrow, this is on a par with the chances of Geneva ending armaments next week.

Even so, the same imponderables about weapons and equipment would arise, about what was best and what monies should be spent, with defence ministers and retired military officers still in conflict as to what was the wisest course to pursue.

Those who think all military troubles can be transferred easily to the UN—after the fashion of dumping all domestic troubles on a senior government—patently have not troubled to study the reality of UN affairs or the practicalities of UN operation.

Two Good Ideas

VISITORS to Victoria, not to mention residents, may find the city more interesting and charming than ever this coming summer by virtue of two good ideas which seem well on the way to becoming realities.

One is the idea of turning a corner of the Causeway into a miniature "Parisian Left Bank," where selected artists will paint and where finished works will be displayed and—with-out conspicuous commercialism—will be offered for sale. This proposal has been given the blessing of city council, "subject to the artists adhering to all city bylaws and regulations." Council are bound to say things like that.

The other is the idea of turning Broad Street, between Broughton and Fort, temporarily at least, into a pedestrian mall.

City council has not yet acted on this proposal because its public works committee has been waiting for the comments of the retail merchants' group of the Chamber of Commerce. But the merchants' group has now given its support to the idea, and, indeed, it is difficult to find a valid objection to it.

As a thoroughfare for vehicular traffic, this block of Broad does about as much harm as it does good, perhaps more. Its use by cars and trucks causes disruption, confusion and hazard at both ends, particularly the north end with its jog. As a parking place, it accommodates only 13 cars, and at the south end of it there is a parking building with space for nearly 400 cars.

As a mall, it would be an attractive place. The city engineer has suggested that a colorful checkerboard pattern could be painted across sidewalks and roadway; a fountain could be installed in the centre, and seats and potted shrubs could give it a park-like appearance.

Beyond that, it would give a greater measure of safety and convenience to the pedestrians who now use it heavily, coming from and going to the parking building; and it would give Victoria a chance to see how it would like other, similar malls to be created when more off-street parking is provided.

Interpreting the News

Tough Stand On Laos

By ALAN HARVEY, Canadian Press Staff Writer

AN INCREASINGLY tough Western stand is foreboding in the Anglo-American note to Russia on Laos.

Memories of "brinkmanship" are being evoked here in the wake of a message that Sir Frank Roberts, British ambassador in Moscow, has delivered to the Soviet authorities.

The note warns Russia that Britain and the United States will not stand idly by if the situation in Laos continues to deteriorate.

The warning is followed by proposals that the international supervisory commission—comprising Canada, Poland and India—should be reconvened immediately in New Delhi. The possibility of a 14-nation international conference is also mentioned in the message.

The stern tenor of the note is believed to be the handwork of President Kennedy, but reports are that Britain has moved much closer to the U.S. position on Laos. Previously Britain has strongly opposed anything so far of a military solution, which could be the final logic of the new, tougher approach.

Neither Soviet leader Nikita Khrushchev nor his foreign minister, Andrei Gromyko, is in Moscow now to receive the Anglo-American note. This may delay a Russian response.

The Daily Express says that if Russia rejects the note "the prospect of another Korea will loom closer."

The Guardian of Manchester says Britain now is clearly associated with the U.S. in the determination not to let Laos go by default.

"This is a decided change in British policy," says the newspaper.

Laos, a 91,000-square-mile slice of land bordered by six countries, including Communist China, has been an off-and-on trouble spot ever since the supervisory commission left in 1958.

Canada has been intimately involved from the start. The commission was adjourned, largely at Canada's instigation and Canadian diplomats have been at the centre of Western discussions on ways of preventing the fighting in Laos.

Western diplomats believe that Russia is sitting tight, trying to avoid any international diplomatic intervention while events are proceeding favorably for the Communist cause. The Communist-aligned Pathet Lao forces are reported to have made great gains in Laos in recent weeks.

"No more manana, senor"

In South Africa Decision

Canada Provided Bridge

By DUART FARQUHARSON, from London

CANADIAN newspapers have paid much attention to the role of Prime Minister Diefenbaker in the momentous proceedings which transpired here last week. Only now when most of the departing prime ministers have given their interpretations of the secret talks can an assessment be made of the relative importance of the Canadian stand in bringing about the severance of South Africa's membership in the Commonwealth.

The Canadian role had been played up well before the conference began. Officials in Whitehall, generally optimistic that the South African issue could be smoothed over, had lingering fears which were communicated to one British newspaper that Canada might yet force a showdown.

One Asian leader let his hopes be known that the senior dominion intended, to take a lead. In Ottawa these reports were carefully neither confirmed nor denied.

When Mr. Diefenbaker arrived in London he followed his usual practice of speaking in many phrased ambiguities covering him for any eventualities. He repeated his call for a Commonwealth charter of human rights but emphasized that this was a long-term objective which might well take many years to secure.

The issue of South African readmission, he later told Canadian reporters, he was prepared to see postponed until South Africa actually became a republic. This would have been in keeping, he still believes, with the prime minister's conference communique of last year.

When the South African discussion began Monday, however, Dr. Verwoerd made it clear he wanted a decision from this conference. Mr. Diefenbaker then took what might be described as a lead. Not only did he condemn apartheid, but he said that in deciding whether to accept South Africa's application the Commonwealth must have regard to the basic principles for which it stood, that it was time to draw up a declaration of the principle and that apartheid was contrary to them.

The ensuing debate revolved around the Canadian proposal only so far as whether or not there should be a declaration of principle, that apartheid was inconsistent with the Commonwealth. There was general agreement that there should be but the wider plan of enunciating a charter on the lines of the Canadian bill of rights received little support and was not heard of again.

On Tuesday the conference considered several draft formulas submitted from the chair. These were joint products. The Afro-Asian members, particularly India, Nigeria and Malaysia, took a lead on insisting on the unequivocal and repeated denunciation of South Africa's racial policies as inconsistent. They were strongly supported by Mr. Diefenbaker, who opposed the watering down attempts of the other white members.

The final draft declaration, which most conference sources agree had the support of all members Wednesday morning, began by approving South Africa's application as in keeping with constitutional precedent when a member became a republic. The denunciation of the other members for South Africa's racial policies was then, expressed, followed by a section in which Dr. Verwoerd could reply in whatever terms he wished.

Finally the members repeated their condemnation and statement of the Commonwealth ideal.

Had the unacceptability of this declaration been the reason for South Africa's withdrawal it could be fairly said that Canada had played a major role in bringing about the result, but

Dr. Verwoerd has since made it clear, it was not.

South Africa left because Dr. Verwoerd was given the clear impression that some of the Afro-Asian members intended to go on attacking apartheid at any time, that they reserved the right to bring forth motions of expulsion, that they might consider withdrawing themselves.

None of these threats was made openly at the conference. But they were communicated privately. They were the logical extension of the tenor of the whole 15 hours of discussion and they were quite properly pointed out by the chairman, Mr. Macmillan, at the final stage.

It was thus the Afro-Asians, India, Ghana and Nigeria in particular, who voiced the final result. That they did so is due in no small measure to the public declaration of Julius Nyerere that Tanganyika could not join an association that tolerated as a member a government practising apartheid.

The importance of the Canadian role was in providing a bridge between the old white dominions and the new non-white members. Mr. Diefenbaker's particular contribution was in putting the South African problem in the context of the Commonwealth's moral basis for association. For, as one British newspaper has put it, he "moralized more prolixly and piously than any of the Afro-Asians."

Reports From Ottawa

DESPITE the whopping unemployment figures just announced, the economists have cheering news for us: we've hit the bottom of the recession.

One economist-statistician with whom I discussed our so-called "rolling readjustment" opines, from a study of various economic indicators, that we hit bottom in February. If he's right, we hit the low point of the economic cyclical plunge that started last spring at the same time we hit the bottom in the seasonal slowdown that started last fall. Hence those shaking February unemployment figures.

The seasonal upswing traditionally starts slowly after the February-March seasonal low. The cyclical pattern isn't so dependable. While we're probably already picking up steam in the seasonal upturn, best guess I've struck is that we're still bumping along the bottom of the business cycle. The start of the cyclical upturn isn't expected before April.

I'd like to report agreement with Transport Minister Balcer's prediction of a fortnight ago that 1961 will see "the start of a period of unprecedented prosperity," but it appears that Mr. Balcer and I haven't been talking to the same economists. My chaps won't go any further than a forecast that the business cycle will give us a faster ride for the rest of the year than it did in the first three months.

Our three recessions in the past decade have been of increasing severity. The first two were three years apart, the second pair only two years apart. The great problem facing us now is how to slow down this quickening cyclical tempo before we wind up in one long depression.

The experts have fingered the cause: a slowing down in the rate of economic growth ever since 1950. The economy is still growing, but not fast enough to absorb all the people who want work. They're having the same trouble in the States, but as Governor Coyne of the Bank of Canada pointed out in a recent speech, "trends in the growth of gross national product, employment and unemployment seem to have been rather less satisfactory in Canada than in the United States."

Growth slows as more and more industries reach the point where their productive capacity is sufficient to meet demand. For example, new capital investment by industry is expected to be down this year from 1960. Industry needs greater demand to spur it to produce more and thus provide more jobs. But greater demand involves either more sales in Canada in the face of massive unemployment and loss of purchasing power, or more sales abroad in face of the high cost Canadian dollar.

Fortunately there are corrective factors at work. The U.S. recession—more of an inventory adjustment than ours—is over, and U.S. inventory demand for Canadian raw materials is rising. Depleted inventories also are boosting domestic demand for an even wider range of commodities.

Moreover, when our economic growth is slower than that in the U.S., the tendency is for us to import less U.S. investment capital. With this prop weaker, our dollar sags. We import less because imports cost more, and manufacture more at home. Finally, our cheaper money lowers the cost of our exports so that more foreigners can buy more.

At least that's the theory. Let's hope it works.

With the Classics

Of one wide expanse had I been told
That deep-browed Homer ruled as his demesne;
Yet did I never breathe its pure serene
Till I heard Chapman speak out loud and bold:
Then felt I like some watcher of the skies
When a new planet swims into his ken;
Or like stout Cortez when with eagle eyes
He star'd at the Pacific — and all his men
Look'd at each other with a wild surmise —
Silent, upon a peak in Darien.

Moment Of Decision

By MARQUIS CHILDS, from Washington

EXCEPT for those presidents content to sit back and watch the drift of events there comes a moment in every administration when executive power must be used no matter what the turmoil and the tumult that may follow. Such a moment has come in the Kennedy administration.

The president is rather like a swimmer posed on the bank. He is basking in the warm wind of personal popularity. The "image" of the ardent young president, his attractive family, his eloquent words, is an appealing one.

But, as he himself and those around him understand only too well, this cannot last forever if he is to do what he knows must be done. The moment of decision is coming in the message on national defence the White House will send to Congress probably next week. The long and often almost anguished debate that has gone on between the president and his secretary of defence, Robert McNamara, is coming to an end.

Both men appreciate the radical alterations in the defence establishment that must be carried through in order to achieve economy and efficiency so long talked about in Senate debates and political campaigns. But they also appreciate that these alterations, which go along with recommendations for increased defence spending on conventional forces and in other areas, will arouse the determined opposition of some of the most powerful pressure groups in the country. This is evident from a listing of some of the principal alterations under debate:

A cutback in airplane production where it is clearly demonstrable that certain projects have no further value.

Elimination of certain missile developments that have grown like Topsy largely because of pressures from industry, labor and the local community. The waste in at least one instance is in the order of hundreds of millions, if not billions, of dollars.

A cutback in the production of fissionable material in view of an overflowing inventory of the raw material and of megaton hydrogen bombs.

Economies in the National Guard and the Air National Guard where the waste and the dubious contribution to the nation's defence are glaringly obvious.

Any one of these proposals would be enough in itself to start a roaring backfire generating powerful pressures applied to Congress to prevent any alterations.

The president's political aides are recalling that the Republicans charged in the campaign last fall that airplane contracts in Southern California would be cut back or transferred to New York State and other areas. They believe this is why the Kennedy-Johnson ticket lost that state.

Confronting the moment of decision, what the president—any president finding himself in this situation—must ask himself is whether the sum total of all pressure groups will not in the end add up to complete stalemate. It has begun already. The powerful truckers' lobby, angered by tax proposals in the highway message, is doing everything possible to block any change in this department.

In national defence and the spending of more than $40,000,000,000 a year the president comes up against a whole complex of built-in interests. To challenge them now with a recession on is to invite the charge that any cutback will increase unemployment and deepen the recession.

Yet to fail to make the challenge is to sanction past inefficiency and waste and thereby make it far more difficult to revitalize America's defenses. But also it bears directly on the effort to make some small beginning on disarmament. If the interests involved can block any change for reasons of efficiency and economy, they will be in a stronger position to resist disarmament moves that might affect them adversely.

The president's message writers are looking back at the warning uttered by former President Eisenhower in his farewell message on January 17. While he waited until the last minute of the last hour, he did speak fateful words of warning about the "potential for the disastrous use of misplaced power" in the military-industrial complex and the danger "that public policy could itself become the captive of a scientific technological elite."

That warning of the former president is a matter of deep concern to his young successor as he stands ready to take the plunge. He must commit himself to a greater degree, if one accepts the view of his biographer, James MacGregor Burns, than he has ever done before. And in grappling with the complex—the tangled interweaving of power and money about which Mr. Eisenhower spoke—he will inevitably sacrifice some of his personal popularity.

Fun, Fact and Fiction

Canada's railways move more than 3,000,000 tons of freight a week, at a cost of less than two cents per ton mile.

During a week when her husband and three children were sick at home, the harassed housewife commented, "The toughest thing about being a wife and a mother is that you have no place to stay home from."

"Aren't you ashamed?" roared the indignant judge, "to have your wife support you by doing such menial labor?"

"Well, yes, in a way, your honor," answered the man. "But it's not my fault—she's too ignorant to do anything else."

Letters to the Editor

Wanted: Decorum

Your editorial today regarding debates in both B.C. and Saskatchewan Legislatures as indicating that we have not progressed far enough from the days of bar room law making reminds me of a meeting I attended one time in Regina when their local House was indulging in a marathon session of mud slinging. One disgusted speaker wanted to know why we cannot get legislature members who would be above participating in such shenanigans. Another replied with the remark that no self-respecting citizen would wish to be associated with a group like those then in the House.

As things are now we select our legislators from amongst successful business and professional people or popular local citizens in much the same manner as sheriffs are elected south of the border. How much decorum or law-making sagacity are we entitled to expect from a group thus chosen? Though holding the best intentions they are thrust into a situation for which they have not been trained. If we are maturing nationally as rapidly as we like to think we are it is time we were definitely preparing men and women in statesmanship in order that we may have persons better qualified to sit in our Legislatures.

Review Attacked . . .

It was startling on opening your paper . . . to find that your reporter covering the weekend symphony concert had described Beethoven's great setting of Schiller's "Ode to Joy" (in his Ninth Symphony) as "dealing with death and allied subjects," and that the headline writer had helped out by dubbing the whole thing, "Death Program Cheerless Affair."

This was a major artistic event in this capital city of Victoria, a city which could become a cultural centre for the province. (It is no longer a "hick town.") Our newspapers could contribute to this end.

Would it be possible for this reporter to report on the talents to the field in which he excels—the reporting of entertainments put on for or by children and young people? It is surely time that someone with artistic knowledge and a more mature approach was employed to report on such things as symphony concerts.

(Mrs.) ROSALIND COOPE.

838 Somerset Street.

Editorial note: Mr. Bert Binny described the whole program as dealing with death and allied subjects, not specifically the setting of the "Ode to Joy." Here are his comments:

. . . And Defended

Any difference of opinion on the Ninth Symphony of Beethoven is but a continuation of arguments that have been going on for close to 150 years and that will, in all likelihood, never be resolved.

This, of course, does not refer to the actual music itself. Other than to say that the Ninth Symphony was "the best part of the program," despite insurmountable difficulties in placing the artists, there was no comment on this aspect.

It should be worthy of some consideration that Schiller's "Ode to Joy" appears in the last movement of the symphony and is introduced by the baritone's solo, "O friends, no more these sounds continue! Let us raise a song of sympathy, of gladness. O joy, let us raise thee!" (For the sake of authority, this is Natalie Macfarren's translation).

These were not Schiller's words but added by Beethoven. It is also noteworthy that the "Ode to Joy" was written by Schiller at the age of 25, designed to be sung by friends "around the festive board" and as a tribute to the author's friendship with the eminent jurist Christian Gottfried Körner.

In other words the Ode portrayed unalloyed happiness.

Why, then, did Beethoven feel constrained to introduce the ode with words such as "no more these sounds continue" unless "these sounds" (i.e. the music leading up to the choral movement) were in strong contrast to the joyous sounds of and accompanying the ode?

Programmatically it would seem that the Ninth Symphony is pretty stern stuff even though it concludes on a more cheerful note.

And this effect was heightened by inclusion of the Ninth Symphony with a "Dirge" and "Four Last Songs." BERT BINNY.

Wife Tells Jury

Husband 'All Right' Just Before Crash

The wife of a Sooke man charged with criminal negligence in a double road death told an assize court jury yesterday his driving "was all right."

"It was slow as always—about 35 to 40 because he knows I'm nervous," said Mrs. Dorothy Elizabeth Stewart, Kemp Lake Road.

DUE MONDAY

She and her husband, William John Stewart, who is charged in the death of Jack Cameron, one of two brothers who died in the Dewdney Flats accident Oct. 21, gave all defence testimony. Final arguments and charge to the jury are due Monday.

Mrs. Stewart said that between 2:15 p.m. Oct. 20 and the time of the accident, about 1:30 a.m., her husband had some beer in Victoria and Colwood, then had a meal and "went to bed" in a friend's home for about three hours, getting up at 12:30.

Mrs. Stewart said: "We were driving along, awake and talking, and as we rounded a curve near the Flats a car passed going towards Victoria, with very bright lights."

"There was a flash of very bright lights and then the crash. That's all I remember," she said, adding there were no flashing amber lights at the crash scene.

TOO CLOSE

Stewart also told of lights of an incoming car, then lights flashing in front of him—"I put on the brakes but was too close, and we hit."

He said the element of surprise caused the crash—"There were the passing lights, then as my eyes adjusted to the darkness again these other lights came out of nowhere."

'Hidden' Contract For Uranium Electrifies Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—Fresh light may be shed next week on Ottawa's most intriguing question—why a multi-million-dollar uranium contract with the United Kingdom, signed four years ago, didn't become public knowledge until this week.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker told the Commons Friday he will comment Monday on queries as to whether he was aware of the contract and how it will be allocated to producers.

MINES CLOSED

Liberal Leader Pearson issued a statement accusing the government of concealing the contract while it watched uranium mines close for lack of business.

Meanwhile other opposition MPs said they plan to press for a detailed explanation as to why there had not been an earlier announcement.

ONE REFERENCE

And it turned out that there had been at least one reference to additional sales of uranium to Britain in the House of Commons two years ago.

First public disclosure of the contract for Britain to buy 24,000,000 pounds of uranium from March 31, 1963, to Dec. 31, 1966, was at a research committee meeting March 3.

NOT REPORTED

But everyone missed the significance of W. M. Gilchrist's remarks about the contract and it was not reported until Thursday. Mr. Gilchrist is president of Eldorado Mining and Refining Ltd., crown-owned uranium company.

A search of Hansard, verbatim record of Parliament shows Trade Minister Churchill referred Feb. 1, 1958, to additional sales of uranium to Britain.

"Terrific!" says Mrs. Hugh Downs

"April McCall's is just full of surprises. Never in my life have I seen so many exciting things in a magazine. I didn't think McCall's could top itself, but the April issue has done just that."

SHELBURNE, N.S. (UPI)—The storm-battered fishing vessel Felix and Florence Hickey was towed into this Nova Scotia fishing port Friday and its six crew members said they held little hope for 17 other men missing in the Atlantic since Monday.

Stripped of deck equipment, rudderless and with her engine disabled, the Hickey limped into her berth behind a tug after a three-day battle with the choppy Atlantic.

Meanwhile the search continued for survivors of three other fishing boats caught in a violent storm Monday that dumped heavy snow in the wake of 50 mile an hour winds.

Wreckage of one vessel, the Muriel Eileen, was spotted near the entrance of Halifax harbor Wednesday, but there was no sign of its five crew members.

The Jimmy and Sisters and the Marjorie Byrd sister ship of the ill-fated Muriel Eileen, have not been heard from since late Monday.

The sea tragedy could be the worst since June, 1959, when 35 fishermen were killed in the Northumberland Strait.

Captain Murray MacKenzie said he was on deck Monday night when the Hickey keeled over but righted herself, then started to take in water.

The crew members, asleep in the fore-castle, scrambled to deck.

On several occasions the crew feared they would have to abandon their vessel, but they held on manning the pumps continuously until rescue craft came to their side.

Perjury Conspiracy Charged to Victorians

Three Victorians appeared in city police court yesterday to face a joint charge of conspiring to commit perjury.

The three—Sandor Domokos,

Winnifred Domokos and Beryl Ann Fisher—were remanded to March 30 for election of trial and plea.

The charge arose from a recent assault case tried in city court.

John Henry Pollard, 1660 Island Highway, was given two concurrent two-month jail terms in Colwood court yesterday—one for common assault and the other for creating a disturbance in a public place by being drunk.

In Oak Bay court William E. Williams, 971 Linkleas, was fined $50 when he pleaded guilty to consuming liquor in a public place—on Windsor Road.

Ian Diment, 2675 Windsor, was fined $20 when he pleaded guilty in the same court to failing to make returns under the Unemployment Insurance Act.

Thirteen of the 15 universities in England and Wales were founded in the 19th century or evolved from 19th century colleges.

Scots, U.S. Defeat Canadian Curlers

PERTH, Scotland (CP)—The Scottish team skipped by Willie McIntosh, defeated the Canadians 15-4 Friday to post the most one-sided score in Scotch Cup curling history. Earlier the United States team from Seattle scored a startling 13-6 win over Canada.

The losses meant Canada lost its opportunity to clinch its third straight world curling title and forced a three-way playoff among the teams.

Canada meets the U.S. team, skipped by Dr. Frank Creighton today at Perth and the winner of that game faces Scotland for the title at Edinburgh, March 30.

"The boys and myself just couldn't get onto the ice," Canadian skip Hee Gervais of Edmonton said. "I missed wide open takeout shots. In fact we couldn't get the weight at all."

Canada's Ken Watson said the upset was "a startling day in curling. This was a black Friday for Hee Gervais and his Edmonton rink." He said the team crumbled in the last six ends because the front end was not supporting Gervais and that Gervais himself lost "the magic touch."

Canada led Scotland 3-2 going into the fifth end. The Scots scored two on the fifth end, one on the sixth and five on the seventh. Play stopped after 11 ends with the score at 15-4.

In the morning match against the U.S., Canada failed to hold a 5-1 lead after four ends. The U.S. team scored on the next five ends.

Linescores:
Canada 103 100 000 100—6
U.S. 010 023 211 012—13
Canada 010 110 000 10—4
Scotland 101 002 153 02—15

No Props

There are no props under prop forward Pat Boyd of University of California Golden Bears. He just happened to wind up this way while throwing pass out from scrum.

Bears Large—And Lethal

University of California Golden Bears, a large and lethal rugby side, have a record that bears looking into. Depending upon whether or not they win today's World Cup match against University of British Columbia in Vancouver, they will be undefeated in 37 (or 38) of their last 40 matches when they play Victoria Crimston Tide in an exhibition match Monday at Royal Athletic Park at 8:30.

UBC is favored in today's match, primarily because it was the Thunderbirds who beat Cal, 8-3, Feb. 25 to snap a 35-game unbeaten streak that stretched back to an April 4, 1958, match in Vancouver.

If it's any consolation to the Tide, it will be facing probably one of the weakest Cal teams in some years, despite the impressive record. For this season, Cal's record is six victories, two losses and a tie.

Leading the Cal team will be Dr. Miles Hudson, who has coached the side for 22 years. Tide will probably get a good scouting report on the California side in today's game. Referee for the match is Dave Mackenzie of Victoria, who will be bringing back as much information as possible on the strength and weaknesses (if any) on the Cal club.

Tide's lineup will be the same as the one that played in the McKeechle Cup series, with one exception. Til Briggs, who was forced out of the cup series with an injury, will be at his regular second row forward spot in place of Chris Pollard.

Eight Rinks Boast 4-0 Marks In Comox Valley's Bonspiel

By JIM TANG

COURTENAY—Gar Taylor's Victoria rink was among eight still unbeaten here after last night's late draws in the annual men's bonspiel at Comox Valley Curling Club.

Taylor, Lyall Dagg of Vancouver, Bob Fuller of Nanaimo and Joe McClure, Grant McDonald and Gordon Pollock all had 4-0 records to lead in the grand aggregate. H. Beyer of Powell River was 3-0 and Lorne Irwin of Courtenay had won both his two games. Out to the eighth in the "A" primary were Taylor, Fred Dingwell and Terry Law of Courtenay, and McDonald had reached the eighth of the "B" primary.

Taylor beat Pete Priest of Duncan, 8-7, and Jack Coates of Nanaimo, 11-10 yesterday to reach the eighth of both primaries.

As for the other four Victoria rinks, Bob McDonald reached the eighth of the "A" secondary; Larry Marshall made the 16s of the "B" secondary; Jim Tang advanced to the 16s of the "A" secondary, and Al Clevette made the 16s of both the "A" primary and the "B" secondary.

Tang beat Ken Smith of Vancouver, 14-2, then lost 7-6 to Gordon Pollock of Comox RCAF. Marshall beat Fred, 7-6, then lost to Coates, 9-8, and to McClure, 10-7.

McIntosh defeated Terry Law of Comox RCAF, 10-6, but was beaten by Dagg, 14-5. Clevette beat J. McNabb of Courtenay, 9-4, then lost to Fuller, 7-4.

Sebring's Big Grind Gets Away Today

SEBRING, Fla. (AP)—Harry Washburn of Shreveport, La., coaxed a Fiat Abarth to a 100-yard victory Friday in a thrilling four-hour duel for smaller model sports cars over the demanding Sebring track.

The crowd of 3,000 near the finish line roared its applause as Walter Hansen of Westfield, N.J., battled Robert Leiss of Glenview, Ill., bumper to bumper for second place. Leiss, driving an Abarth, was listed by officials and announced over the loudspeaker as the runner-up, getting across the finish line one-half second ahead of Hansgen's Sebring Sprite.

Later, officials changed the order of finish. Hansgen had driven one full lap farther than Leiss. Leiss finished third. The race was the first of three preliminaries for today's 12-hour Sebring endurance road race. Drivers in 65 cars will start the gruelling test at 7 a.m. PST over the snake-like 5.2-mile course.

Finishing behind the leaders were five Sebring Sprites, a car with tremendous control on the curves. The drivers in order were: Stirling Moss, England; Ed Leavens, London, Ont.; Bruce McLaren, New Zealand; Pat Moss, England, and Briggs Cunningham.

NEW SITE

Today's Boudreau Cup grass hockey title game between Mariners and University will be played at 2:30 at Central Junior High School instead of at Victoria High as originally scheduled.

Hebert Keeps Slight Lead

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Jay Hebert, with a two-round total of 134, clung to his one-stroke lead Friday as the field in the $25,000 Sunshine Open golf tournament reached the halfway point with the leaders bunched like bananas.

Hebert added a 68 Friday over the 6,632-yard, par 36-72 Bayshore course to his first-round 66.

DOUG MACAULEY

Victoria Cougars went fishing for a playoff spot in the Western Hockey League last night, but they had only one line out and it wasn't enough to land a catch that big when they had it on the hook.

Instead, they lost a chance to clinch a tie for sixth place and a spot in the playoffs as Maculey was at his clever best to give Cougars a 1-0 lead with 52 seconds gone in the second period. Ross came down the left boards, slammed on the brakes just over the blue line, and fed a pass to Saunders. The relay went to Macauley, who waited for Bentley to make his move and put the puck over him for his 23rd goal of the season.

SEATTLE LEADS
Seattle took the lead on a shot by Marc Boileau that hit the open corner of the net and a power-play shot by Bill MacFarland as he was skating backwards in front of the Cougar net.

Then it was Macauley again at 19:17 with a hard slap shot from the blue line, and the period ended 3-3.

Ross, Saunders and Macauley got the goal-keeping through sheer dogged persistence at 7:17 of the third, fighting for the puck in a six-man melee in front of the Seattle net. It finally came to Ross, who batted it past Bentley as he fell.

THAT WAS IT
But that was it for Cougars, thanks to a slight letdown and a man named Eddie Stankiewicz, an ex-Flyer doing his best to get Edmonton into the playoffs.

He eluded a half-hearted check to sweep around the Cougar net and slip the puck into an open corner at 10:11, and after Pelletier had made a great save on Gord Tansley, was back at 16:14 on a play with Gerry Leonard and Murray Wilkie for the winner.

City's Best
In B.C. Final

By JIM TAYLOR

Jim Mills and Len Murrant go after the B.C. tenpin championship in Vancouver today and tomorrow, competing against six other bowlers from across the province in an 18-game test in three different houses.

Winner goes on to the western Canada finals, and the winner there enters the Canadian championships with a chance at a berth in the ABC Masters.

Annual 20-game marathon at Capital City Bowling Lanes will be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday, with $1,500 offered to any fivepinner bowling a perfect game.

Shifts roll at 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. each day, with entries accepted until starting time if shifts are not filled. Top prize is $125, with other cash awards for the top six bowlers and for high single and series.

Bill Martin's 903 (327) at Esquimalt Bowladrome was tops for the city in the fivepin circuit this week. He was followed on those alleys by Fred Sallis, 815; Emil Liska, 781 and 750; Herb Hunt, 772; Jack Bernester, 763; Flo Manns, 762 (306); Alex Kirker, 746 (340); Shirley Kaye, 744, and Freda Carey, 725.

High Fivepin Roller

Geoff Worrall had the high fivepin score at Gibson's this week, an 877 series including single games of 303 and 305. Other high scorers there were K. Buchanan, 821 (346); Bob Nicholson, 784; Doug Wylie, 783 (328); Ron Pleasant, 777 (373); R. Copeland, 775; Isobel Barrick, 774; Cec McRae, 721 (300); S. Rowe, 735; Alex Kirker, 755, and C. Pugh, 747 (314).

At Capital City, the top scorers were Don Corbett, 763; Emil Liska, 747; Nelson Crisp, 718, and Harry Smith, 723. Jim Weir, 825 301 and 700; John Neufeld, 787, and Shirley Sandwith, 722, were tops at Strathcona Bowling Alleys.

A student fivepin tournament run under "big time" conditions is planned April 5-6-7 at Esquimalt Bowladrome by Bert Nelson.

Split into 14-and-under, and over-14 classes, the tourney will run in shifts at 10 a.m., noon, 2 and 4 p.m. each day, with entry fee 75 cents per event or $2 for entry in all three — the singles, doubles and team events.

Prizes will be in the form of trophies, with other awards for hidden scores.

Blew on 10th Frame

Bill Walker started off with nine strikes in a row, then blew the 10th frame for a 267 single at Aurora Lanes this week, finishing with a 643 series for the week's high three.

Other high scorers at Aurora were Carl Locatelli, 615 (227); Reg Pugh, 605 (206, 200); Bruce Logie, 604 (236) and 575 (225); Harold Paulding, 602 (218); Al Knight, 598 (215); Jack Fletcher, 596 (201, 204); Derek Leonard, 593 (207, 206); Molly Mapes, 592 (225) and 586 (216); Norm Gamble, 592 (211); Dave Barr, 586 (202, 211); John Jones, 586; Tom Letton, 586 (203); Bruce Lloyd, 585 (200, 215); Bill Tribe, 584 (243); Roy Kerr, 583 (217) and 584 (200, 201), and Jim Mills, 584 (235).

Marge Beane, 570 (204) and Eleanor Pattison, 552 (210) topped the ladies at Aurora and Marge Beane, 542 (201), and Peggy Trickett, 528, were the best at Gibson's.

Four Islanders Still in the Running For Irish Sweep Fortunes Today

One Victorian and three other Vancouver Islanders have a chance at the big money in today's Irish sweepstakes on the Grand National steeplechase.

Final scratches yesterday removed seven other island-backed horses and gave their holders consolation prizes.

Still in the running for $137,500 top prizes are "Pay Day" of Victoria, with ticket RZN 49509 on Jontie.

Only consolation-prize winners identified are Tullio Pigert, 1024 Pakington; Walter Bull, 2632 Forbes, and G. W. Graham, Galiano.

Ceylon Holds Back

COLOMBO, Ceylon (UPI)—Agriculture Minister Charles Perival De Silva said yesterday the Ceylonese government has no plans to nationalize foreign-owned plantations in the "near future."

CAROL TREGOFF

JOHN GALBRAITH

Galbraith Favors 'Two-China' Policy

WASHINGTON — Canadian-born economist John Kenneth Galbraith came out in favor of an eventual "two-China" policy and bluntly told a Senate committee "I don't think Red China is going to disappear from the face of the earth."

Nominated by President Kennedy as ambassador to India, he said: "I hope the time will come when it is possible to have peace in that part of the world based on the existence of an independent Taiwan. 'I assume that implies the ultimate recognition by the U.S. of Red China.'"

LOS ANGELES — Carol Tregoff is negotiating with several publications to sell her story, also with several movie-makers for a film of her life to pay legal fees for her three trials — providing this trial reaches a definite verdict. The jury's still out.

BELLEVEILLE, Ont. — Tommy McNevin, 10-year-old victim of a $25,000 kidnapping plot, was buried in a small graveyard near the tomb of his Cub master and possible abductor, Warren Williamson.

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad — Prime Minister Macmillan arrived for a goodwill visit to the West Indies before going on to the U.S. and Canada.

LONDON — Henry Houghton, 55, and Ethel Gee, 46, will appeal their 15-year sentences for stealing Royal Navy secrets for the Russians.

LONDON — Elizabeth Taylor, 29, almost fully recovered from near-fatal pneumonia, will leave Monday for New York and Hollywood.

SALISBURY — Prime Minister Sir Edgar Whitehead of Southern Rhodesia detained a Negro who broke into his bedroom, holding him until police arrived.

UNITED NATIONS — U.S. ambassador Adlai Stevenson and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko conferred on issues of "mutual interest" again before Gromyko's departure for Moscow soon.

Names in the News

BUTTE, Mont. — James E. Murray, of Montana, Canadian-born Democratic power in the U.S. Senate, during much of his 26-year membership, died at 87.

OTTAWA — The cabinet commuted to life imprisonment the death sentence against Andrew Creighton, 22, convicted of murder in the shooting of his wife on an Alberta Indian reservation last year.

LONDON — Shares in the Daily Mail newspaper group soared on rumors Canadian publisher Roy Thomson will make a bid to take it over.

NEW DELHI — Roving U.S. ambassador Averell Harriman delivered a special message on Laos from President Kennedy to Prime Minister Nehru. Meanwhile, in Palm Springs, Calif., Dwight Eisenhower supported Kennedy's Laos policy.

BONN — Economics Minister Ludwig Erhard said West Germany will repay its remaining post-war debt to Britain, $189,000,000, in two or three years.

OTTAWA — Capt. Sturton Mathwin Davis of Victoria will succeed Commodore Frank Freeborn next month as naval director-general of ships.

Enthusiastic Rotary Boys' Choir Proves Show Business Proverb

By BERT BINNY

A pleasing program was presented last night by the Rotary Boys' Choir in recital at Oak Bay Junior High School.

There is no adage of the entertainment world more true than that which says that an audience enjoys best those things which the performers enjoy doing. This was amply borne out last night.

AUDIENCE, TOO

The choir was always responsive and enthusiastic; so was the audience.

The program was widely varied with religious numbers, sea shanties, spirituals, folk songs, light standards and items from musicals all included.

Soloists were Bill Ritchie, Ken Smith, Terry McBratney and Robert Hall.

The staging was excellent but the lighting effects, being apparently the result of experimentation rather than planned accomplishment, were sometimes only distracting.

The conductor was William Home.

'Dangerous' Boatman Fined $100

A power-cruiser operator yesterday was swatted with a $100 fine for circling the full-speeding ferry Mv Sidney so close that the ferry's skipper said he could have "jumped into the boat" without difficulty.

A stiff warning to all yachtsmen to heed rules of sea lanes went with the fine levied against Leonard William Rawluk, of Vancouver, after his conviction in Sidney police court on a charge of dangerous navigation.

PREVOST ISLAND

Charge was laid by the Mv. Sidney's master, Capt. Thomas Parkinson, following an incident Sept. 10 near Prevost Island, south of Active Pass. Philip Birkett of Sidney, second mate of the Sidney, said he was on duty on the bridge at the time.

"I observed a power cruiser overtaking us on the starboard side," he said. "It ran along side, about 40 feet from the ferry, went ahead of about 70 feet in front of the Sidney, then cut across the bow and proceeded down the port side, again at a distance of about 40 feet from the ship's side."

NEAR STERN

He said the cruiser made a turn near the stern of the Sidney, then came back along the port side, still about 30 or 40 feet away, before turning and heading toward Active Pass.

The second mate said he noted the cruiser's registration number when it went by on its final run.

Speed of the Sidney at the time was 18 knots, he said, and he estimated the speed of the cruiser as at least 40 knots.

Answering questions put by Cpl. William Stanton, of Sidney RCMP detachment, acting as prosecutor, the mate said that at 18 knots it would take the Sidney a mile and one-half to come to a full stop in case anything happened.

Mr. Birkett said the danger involved was his lack of knowledge of what the other craft was going to do. He made note of the affair because the small craft was operating in a manner dangerous to navigation, life and limb.

FATHER WITH HIM

Capt. Parkinson, veteran of 30 years at sea, and Quartermaster Archie McLean, with the RCN 16 years before retirement and now on the Sidney, said that at one point the small boat was so close he could have jumped into it without any difficulty.

Mr. Rawluk said he had his father from Galliano Island and friend Ole N. Johansen of North Vancouver with him in the cruiser at the time.

He was expecting another friend to join them for the weekend from Vancouver, and thought he might be aboard the Sidney.

With this in mind he came on the Sidney at a 60-degree angle from behind, then ran alongside "250 to 300 feet" off to the starboard.

SPEEDED UP

"They didn't see him," he said. "So I speeded up and overtook the Sidney, went ahead 800 or 1,000 yards, then cut across her bow at about 40 miles per hour, and went down the port side still looking, and still about 250 or 300 feet away."

"There have been many complaints of 'buzzing' operations by small boats," said Cpl. Stanton. "They get a boat with lots of power under them and like to feel a burst of speed."

Planting Time In Esquimalt

Esquimalt is busy planting 350 saplings of trees, flowering plants and red maple, purchased earlier this week from the city.

The first batch of trees are going in on Gouper Crescent and council will decide next week where the rest will be planted.

Politics Protested As City Locals Leave Labor Body

Street Railwayman's Union and at least two other union locals have disaffiliated from the Victoria Labor Council in protest of political action, it was learned last night.

A spokesman for Local 109 of the Street Railwayman's Union, which represents B.C. Electric bus drivers, said his 200-member local withdrew from the council "about two months ago."

The spokesman, who asked that his name be not used at this time, said a letter was sent to the council stating the local's stand of refusing association with any political action "either in the council or in the local union division."

The union has since been urged by the council to reconsider its action, but no further action is contemplated, the spokesman said.

He added that he knew of "at least two other locals" which had also disaffiliated from the council for similar reasons.

Labor council president Robert Barrie last night confirmed withdrawal of the railwaymen's union.

He also confirmed the loss of two other unions, but wouldn't identify them.

Last fall the Victoria branch of the B.C. Government Employees' Association pulled out of the council in opposition to the active support of the New Party.

Mr. Barrie said the latest withdrawals were dealt with by the council as a committee-of-the-whole when the unions questioned financial reports showing contributions for political purposes.

The council, he said, "hasn't received any complaints" from other member unions.

Mr. Barrie said he didn't want to comment on the withdrawals. Council has decided to "leave them alone" to consider their actions.

Vandalism

Red Paint Dauber Smears Five Cars

Vandals armed with red paint attacked at least five cars on Irma and Madgock streets last night before police officers arrived on the scene.

Police officers checked all parked cars in the area after a report from Dr. O. C. Lucas who was making a house call in the district.

The vandalism was blamed on pranksters who had walked along the sidewalk "probably carrying a tube of red paint and smearing a couple of streaks on each car," a police official said.

Child Survives 15-Foot Drop From Window

By JACK FREY

A 20-month-old Victoria West boy survived a 15-foot plunge to the ground yesterday from an open second-storey window at his home.

James Leslie Scott Matheson, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Matheson, who live in an upper apartment at 645 Pine Street, apparently uninjured by the fall, is in satisfactory condition at St. Joseph's Hospital, where he was kept overnight for observation.

INCHES FROM ROCK

He landed on the ground, inches from a concrete sidewalk and rocks in a flower garden.

A neighbor, Mrs. Richard McGaw, who lives in the lower apartment at the same address, was standing on her front steps when the toddler plummeted to the ground several feet away.

BITS OF WOOD

"I heard a noise, and I saw bits of wood coming down. Then I saw him coming down. I heard a thump on the ground. I was shocked. I couldn't believe it," she said.

Mrs. McGaw, who has children of her own, said "about 20 minutes before he fell, I had an awful feeling he was going to fall out of the window."

COULDN'T HEAR

"I heard him walking around upstairs but I couldn't hear his mother. I knew the window was open and I was just going up and say something," said Mrs. McGaw.

She said she was distracted at this point when her own son, four-year-old Russell, was playing in the front yard with other children, fell off his tricycle.

"He screamed first, and I went out front. I had just

'Everything's Fine—So Far' Fleming Says—In Passing

Peter Bruton's Capital Notebook

UP IN THE AIR: Federal Finance Minister Donald Fleming told this story to the Canadian Club luncheon yesterday by way of explaining the progress of his Columbia River talks with Premier Bennett.

A Canadian in New York was looking out of a window on the 39th floor of a skyscraper when he saw a man jump from the 50th floor.

As the body hurtled past the window the Canadian called: "How is everything?"

The falling man quickly retorted: "Everything's fine—so far."

TOP BILLING: Those Esquimalt-Saanich Tories are hell-bent on boosting their federal byelection candidate George Chatterton.

Advertisements for last night's Conservative rally gave Mr. Chatterton bigger billing than federal Finance Minister Donald Fleming.

END OF THE AFFAIR: It's funny how the rush to finish all the legislative, business takes precedence over everything else in the dying stages of a session.

Health Minister Eric Martin has a knack of angering the opposition by castigating them with a fiery tongue—a move that prolongs debate.

Yesterday, with his departmental estimates still to come and everyone wanting to get home quickly, Mr. Martin was pointedly told to keep tight reins on his tongue so the opposition wouldn't get mad.

PLAY NOW, PAY LATER: The CCF brought an angry Premier Bennett to his feet yesterday with a threat that the House would sit all next week, including Good Friday.

The CCF voted against "leave be granted" to receive a report from the legislature's public accounts committee—a move that means two days must go by before the report can be introduced.

"We'll adjourn until next week, if you like," snapped the Premier—still shooting to have the House prorogued today.

"You might see it yet," called Leo Nimick (CCF—Cranbrook).

"Yes," said the angry Premier Bennett, "Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday."

TIED TO CHAIR: A while back the city of Prince Rupert objected to the fact that the Wenner-Gren Pacific Northern Railway would run from north of Prince Rupert rather than have the House prorogued today.

Yesterday the legislature debated the bill which would exempt the railway from the jurisdiction of the Public Utilities Commission and Gordon Dowling (CCF—Burnaby) stated that this would rule out public hearings on the railway.

"Not even Prince Rupert has a say," he said, "why, I'm sure, Mr. Chairman,

Boom Year Here Tories Predict

Finance Minister Donald Fleming said here last night the federal government has done all that could be done to combat the unemployment that has become Canada's leading domestic problem.

He accused opposition parties of "preaching doom and gloom" in order to exploit the misery of thousands of unemployed for political purposes.

CAMPAIGN START

The minister addressed an audience of more than 250 at a rally in St. J. Willis Junior High School that marked the start of the campaign by Conservative candidate Saanich Reeve George Chatterton in the forthcoming Esquimalt-Saanich federal byelection.

Mr. Fleming strongly supported the prediction made last night by Reeve Chatterton that the coming year will be a "boom year" for construction in Esquimalt-Saanich riding.

MORE HOUSING

Mr. Chatterton said increased loans and smaller down payments resulting from recent amendments by the federal government to the National Housing Act, plus further improvements in the Veterans' Land Act, had already borne fruit in increased housing starts.

New housing loans granted in this riding during the month of February and the first two weeks of March, said Reeve Chatterton, totalled 223 compared with 47 loans granted for the same period last year.

NOT SATISFIED

Mr. Fleming said "no government could have done more in relation to unemployment" than the present government has already done, but he added "we're not satisfied, of course, and we're going to press on towards alleviation of the present situation and a solution to the long-term problem."

THREE LEVELS

In a free economy, the minister said, responsibility for combatting unemployment rests with all three levels of government and with the public as well. He added: "With all the freedom we enjoy goes responsibility to do something about the problems that face our nation."

Mr. Fleming said "gloom and doom" tactics adopted by members of the opposition had shaken the confidence of the country without providing any constructive assistance in solving the problem.

PERHAPS ATONE

"These opposition parties will have to account for, yes perhaps atone for, exaggerating this problem out of all recognition when the voters of Esquimalt-Saanich go to the polls on the day of the byelection which may not be very far off," said Mr. Fleming.

Host's Help Symbolic?

Finance Minister Fleming wondered yesterday whether there was anything symbolic in the first happening upon his meeting with Premier Bennett.

He told reporters: "When I came in, the premier, like a good host that he is, first relieved me of my briefcase."

New Nations Call Canada 'Big Brother'

Canada is regarded as a "sort of Big Brother" by the emerging nations of the Commonwealth, said Finance Minister Donald Fleming here last night.

He told a Progressive Conservative rally that, despite the anguish felt at the withdrawal of South Africa's application to remain a Commonwealth member after it becomes a republic May 31, the decision taken was a "matter of satisfaction" to most Canadians.

"It has given most Canadians a thrill of pride that the conscience of Canada had been so faithfully interpreted to the meeting of Commonwealth prime ministers by our esteemed leader, John G. Diefenbaker."

Horrified Crowd Sees Man Dangle From Roof Ledge

A horror-stricken crowd watched fascinated as a man dangled precariously from the roof ledge of a downtown hotel some 30 feet above the sidewalk for more than five minutes last night.

Constable David Glancy, one of two rescuers, said the man was standing on a ledge that was about 1 1/2 inches wide.

"He was just hanging on the hotel, said he didn't recognize the stranger who was in his 20s.

"I have a lot of trouble with that fire escape. I should get one that swings down only when someone steps on it." Police on the scene had their work cut out keeping traffic moving with the large Friday night shopping crowd.

A sigh of relief went up from the crowd as the man was finally pulled to safety by Const. Glancy and Wayne Robinson.

OVER THE TOP

Alfred Veltzel, a bystander, said, "I don't know how many men they had on the roof, but when they grabbed him he went flying over the top."

Another eyewitness who declined to give his name said he first saw the man standing on the ledge 30 feet above the street.

"It looked as though he was trying to get back onto the roof. He came close to falling once but he was able to hang on somehow with just one hand and a foot."

JUMP NET

Police asked the fire department to bring a jump net but cancelled the call when they received word of the rescue.

The man perched on the ledge directly above the Acme Furniture Store, 639 Johnson. Proprietor M. L. Raetz, 3007 Quadra, noticed people staring at the store roof and went out to see what was going on.

"He was hanging there right above the top window," he said. "He made no noise and I didn't see his face. There were a couple of coats on the sidewalk. I guess he must have hung them off."

IDENTIFIED

The man, later identified by police as Edward John Perkins, HMCS Naden, apparently walked up a narrow alley and climbed a fire escape leading to the roof of rooms at the

'Home Ec' Teachers Worried

Home economics teachers in the area are worried about a Chant royal commission recommendation that the course be dropped from Grade 7 and made optional for Grade 8.

Home economics is now compulsory for both grades.

The Home Economics Teachers' Association turned to the Greater Victoria Parent-Teacher Council for support in a resolution opposing the recommendation which it will present to a teachers' convention early in April.

The council last night backed the resolution on the basis that loss of home economics courses would be a backward step in education, said Mrs. Irene Byers, president.

Some members expressed the opinion more emphasis should be placed on the three Rs as suggested in the Chant report, she said.

Directors Back Museum Switch

Directors of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce yesterday agreed that the Maritime Museum at Signal Hill in Esquimalt should be moved to HMCS Malahat if the building was available and if the museum committee recommended such a move.

'Myth' Stirs Religious Rumpus

NEW YORK (AP)—A religious rumpus is on in the United States over words—and what they mean.

That, to a great extent, was the cause of the furor about Episcopal Anglican Bishop James A. Pike's comments on certain Christian concepts, such as the Garden of Eden story and the virgin birth of Christ.

He calls them "myths." And this has stirred some sharp protests.

SIMPLE REASON

One reason is simple. In popular parlance, a myth is a fable—an untrue fantasy. But in theological terminology, the meaning is almost opposite—a "myth" is a method of depicting the deepest truths.

"Actually," said the California bishop, "what I've said hasn't been very original."

KEEN OUTRIES

Nevertheless, it has raised some keen outries.

The vigorous 47-year-old Bishop Pike, a one-time U.S. Supreme Court lawyer, law professor and former Roman Catholic, says that as for basic Christian doctrines, including the virgin birth, he firmly believes them all, that he fully accepts the central confessions of faith—the Apostles and Nicene creeds.

SYMBOLIC TRUTH

He emphasized that the creeds, like the Bible, in some cases couch truth in symbolic—or as the theologians put it, "mythological"—terms, without necessarily being precise about physical facts.

"Take the creedal phrases about Christ having 'descended into hell' and "ascended into heaven." Bishop Pike, in a pastoral letter, commented:

NO LONGER BELIEVE

"We no longer believe in a three-level universe, a flat earth, hell below and heaven above. But the mythological pictures make a great point... an eternally profound meaning of what is geographically impossible."

As for the virgin birth, he said the doctrine itself is "certainly true," that the coming of Jesus was "more than an ordinary birth," that it involved "supernatural intervention" in the normal course of human events.

MECHANICS OF MATTER

However, he rejects absolute specifications of "the mechanics of the matter."

"Whether Jesus came through Joseph is not really very significant. Either way, the significant truth is the incarnation. His divinity in humanity. That is essential."

It was the bishop's questioning of the physiological details of the virgin birth in an article in the Dec. 21, 1960, issue of Christian Century, a largely professional journal, that first touched off the uproar.

HUMAN FATHER

In it, he said the "Biblical evidence and theological implications seem to be in favor of assuming that Joseph was the human father of Jesus." The article added that this in no way disputed "the doctrine of the virgin birth"—a "paradox which the myth presents so well."

"It is clear that Jesus was part of the process of history, born a true man, but he was also a divine interruption in history," the bishop said in the interview. "God, through the Holy Spirit, was in this thing, and uniquely so."

Bishop Pike Arrives In Victoria Sunday

Rt. Rev. James A. Pike, Bishop of California, will arrive in Victoria Sunday evening to conduct Holy Week lunch-hour services at Christ Church Cathedral.

The services will be held from 12.15 to 12.40 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

THE VOICE OF ONE

By REV. DR. FRANK S. MORLEY

In Italy you find monuments to heroes inscribed with large letters, STA VIATOR—Stop Passerby—with a brief story of the heroism beneath. The cross is the world's "Sta Viator."

The cross is the world's great illuminator. The cross is the supreme revelation of the eternal. This is what God is like. The sin of the world is not God's act but God's agony. On the cross you see the utter outpouring of the love of God to redeem the world. Here our Lord took upon Himself the penalty for man's sin.

RECONCILED TO GOD

The cross exhausts our language. The highest can neither be spoken nor defined. The cross was a strategy of reconciliation in which man was redeemed from slavery, restored to a lost inheritance, and reconciled to God.

The world is shaped about the gestalt of the cross. When man sees the struggle of life, the conflict of good against evil, order against lawlessness, peace against lawlessness, the cross is pictured as a redemptive conflict.

PAINFUL STRUGGLE

Turning to the social and communal life of man with its institutions of law, justice and co-operation, the cross is seen in terms of righteous judgment. Watching the slow, painful struggle of man from barbarism to civilization the cross is envisaged as creative suffering.

When one looks upon the family relationship where the innocent is forever suffering for the guilty and the parents are taking sins of the children, the cross is seen as forgiving love.

But we are not much shocked at sin today. A child killed on our streets brings barely a ripple of indignation; we accept unchastity as natural to

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Does a girl have the right to tell a man who sits in front of her in a large office that his stinking cigar makes her sick to her stomach?

Several of us would appreciate your frank opinion on this matter. The man also clicks his dentures but we know it's a nervous habit and he does it unconsciously, so we hum while we work and it does help to drown out the sound of the castnets.

The cigar, however, is just too much—especially since he lights up the first thing in the morning when some of us are still navigating on one cup of coffee. Please advise us.

CLOTHESPIN CREW

Dear Crew: A girl does have the right to tell a man that his stinking cigar is making her ill. The air in an office belongs to everyone. No one person has the right to pollute it.

Not all cigars have an unpleasant odor and a mutually satisfactory solution could be a change of brand. Tell the guy his cigars are offensive and suggest he do something about it.

Dear Ann Landers: We live in a suburb where it is extremely difficult to get good alters. My husband's business requires that we go out at least two evenings a week.

A certain sifter (I will call her Suzy) is very dependable and our children love her. She is our steady for Saturday night and she usually saves Friday for us too. The last few Saturday nights when we have come home, my husband swears he has seen a boy running out the back door. Last night he said there was no question about it. He got a good look at the fellow.

I hate to lose Suzy as a sifter, but I don't want the responsibility of whatever might happen here. My husband says its none of our business. I told Suzy from the beginning that she was not to have company in our absence and she said she wouldn't dream of such a thing. What should we do?—THE B'S.

Dear B's: Tell Suzy she cannot sit for you again and why. If you close your eyes to the girl's behavior you are in a sense condoning it, and therefore in part responsible for anything that may happen.

Dear Ann Landers: To the guy who signed himself Socrates' Uncle and wondered what women do all day be-

Not New York

Romans Began Easter

Despite the claims of New Yorkers, the Easter Parade did not originate on Manhattan's Fifth Avenue but in ancient Rome.

That's the word from Diane Burnley, curator of the Coutts historical collection, and part of her job is to keep track of the origins of various occasions.

"Of course, the Romans at first did not celebrate Easter as such," she explained. "It was their New Year, and they made it a time for gay new clothes and elaborate ceremonies."

The Romans felt that new clothes on the day we now observe as Easter brought the wearer good luck all the following year, said Miss Burnley. It wasn't long before the custom spread to other parts of Europe and eventually to the New World.

While this practice has stayed with us, others—also once popular—have passed from the scene. And, said Miss Burnley, "We probably wouldn't want them back."

She cited these examples:

In 13th century England, "lifting" was all the rage. A chair decorated with streamers or ribbon and lined with silk or satin was carried the first day by the young men.

Each girl they met had to sit in it while the men lifted her as high as they could. Next day, it was the girls' turn to lift the men. This practice was abandoned after too many of those being elevated hit the ground with unexpected suddenness.

In the year 1400, a free shave for the church goes in the church yard proved a big hit, and the custom continued well into the 19th century. Just why it ceased isn't too clear, but it may have had something to do with bloodletting going out of fashion.

"One custom that is still very much a part of Easter is that of sending greeting cards," said the curator. "Just where the Easter card originated is not known; some historians think Germany, while others say the U.S. The earliest card I know of is one from 1867.

Despite the great changes during the past century in virtually everything produced by man, modern Easter cards are not strikingly different from those of the 1800's.

"Eggs, chicks, flowers, birds, rabbits, children and the cross still dominate Easter card design," she said. "These symbols have become an integral part of Easter tradition."

Symbols we associate with Easter come to us from both pagan and Christian.

The egg, she said, was regarded as the symbol of creation by both ancient Greeks and Romans. For centuries chicks and ducklings have been emblematic of the renewal of life in the springtime.

Flowers adorn the cross on Easter cards because that is the way it was drawn by early Christians on the walls of the catacombs. The flowers were added to lighten the memory of the cross as an instrument of Christ's death.

The egg-laying Easter bunny comes to us from German mythology which held that the Goddess Eostre changed her pet bird into a rabbit so that he might let children everywhere know that spring was on its way.

Alumni Plan To Combine

Alumni of Victoria College and the University of B.C. from all parts of Vancouver Island have been invited to attend a general meeting to discuss formation of a new joint association on the Lansdowne campus at 8 p.m. Wednesday. The meeting will consider a revised constitution and accept nominations for a new executive to be elected at the annual meeting in May.

ICEBREAKERS

The Icebreakers Club for newcomers to Victoria is holding a social on Wednesday, March 29 at 2:30 p.m. at the Olde England Inn. All welcome.

Retires from Brigade

Surrounded by flowers, gifts, and 100 members of the St. John Ambulance Brigade who came to pay tribute to her 23 years with the order, is Mrs. E. J. Harwood of 233 Street. A large banquet was given in her honor Thursday night at headquarters as she retires as Area Superintendent which included supervision of Victoria, Sooke and Nanaimo. Among those who praised her splendid work with the Brigade was Mr. J. J. Edmondson, Vancouver Provincial Secretary and Dr. T. W. A. Gray, Dr. Gray was Divisional Surgeon of Nursing Division No. 61 23 years ago when he first worked with Mrs. Harwood.—(Photo by W. Boucher.)

E. Matthews, Mrs. R. Peyton, Mrs. J. S. Poole, Miss Mabel Pollard, Mrs. F. L. Rose, Mrs. A. B. Saunders, Mrs. B. K. Sandwell, Mrs. Nancy Smith, Mrs. K. D. Stone, Mrs. A. J. Tullis, Miss J. Wilkinson, Mrs. G. Wilson, and Mrs. Shell Townsend a former member of the group who now resides in Vancouver.

Softer Baby Woolens

There's no need for rough, matted baby garments—not when you use ZERO. Woolen garments won't shrink or mat and all of baby's knitwear, wool, Orlon or Bay-Lon, will stay softer, be cleaner for baby's tender skin, wash after wash if you use ZERO. Use the water temperature you prefer—cool, tepid or lukewarm—you'll get the same wonderful results with new ZERO. For greatest economy buy the large size—you'll save 20¢ or more. Get yours today in the package with the big red "Z".

Model... Commentator

Fourteen-year-old Lory Middler, student at Lansdowne High School proves a lovely model for Eaton's two-day drygoods department fashion show featuring ensembles made from patterns created by Mrs. Pat Gwyer (right) who is here on a Trans-Canada tour. Mrs. Gwyer's shows are repeated at 12:15 and 3:15 p.m. today in Eaton's third floor. Four Victoria girls model 28 garments. Mrs. Gwyer represents a well-known pattern company and offers many tips for those who sew at home. The young models showed many styles, from slim jims and Capri tops to culotte skirts and bright afternoon frocks. Main colors seen were pink (hot pink), yellow, green, lavender and blue. Mrs. Gwyer wore a pale pink dress with soft green "leaf" belt and a hot pink hat. —(Photos by Ryan Bros.)

"Fun!" says Mrs. Arthur Murray

"Reading is one of my greatest pleasures... and McCall's April issue is a thing of beauty... such variety! I particularly like McCall's fashion pages."

This image shows a blank, aged, cream-colored page, likely an endpaper or flyleaf of a book. The paper has a slightly textured appearance with some faint smudges and discoloration, characteristic of old paper. The left edge of the page shows the binding, with visible stitching or staples. The overall tone is warm and slightly off-white.

Winning Contract

By HOWARD SCHENKEN and RICHARD L. FREY

Nearly a quarter century of comments from you, the readers of this column, have had a great deal to do with determining what should go into Richard L. Frey's new book, "How to Win at Contract Bridge in 10 Easy Lessons." (Crest, 288 pages, 50 cents.)

This book is more popular than the weekly quiz, which combines a way of teaching with the entertainment of actually playing. In addition to the weekly quiz, which comes at the conclusion of each lesson, there are innumerable example hands throughout the book.

This week's quiz, for example, is made up of questions selected from just two of the book's pages on Defensive Bidding. The problem involved is what to do after partner has overcalled. The bidding goes:

Answers to bridge quiz

a) Pass. If your partner had better than 14 points he should have doubled. Your combined hands cannot produce a game.

b) Two spades. The raise of an overall shows 11-12 points. (You have 11 in high cards, plus 1 for the promotion of trump jack and one for doubleton, less 1 for only three trumps.)

c) Two diamonds. A constructive bid, denying three trumps.

d) Three spades, announcing 13-14 points, but not forcing bid. Partner needs more than a minimum to go on to four spades.

e) One no trump. Shows 11-12 points with protection in hearts.

f) Four spades. 15 points, plus partner's minimum of 11. Don't worry about holding only three trumps; partner should have at least five.

Garden Notes

Last Call for Seeds!

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

Earlier this week I made a passing mention of the $10,000 award offered to the first person who succeeds in growing a pure white marigold, and I suggested that some Colonist reader might just possibly hit the jackpot with our free seeds of the Summer Sunshine marigold. This seems to have attracted a lot of attention and quite a few readers have asked me to explain the deal.

The idea of the award originated with David Burpee, president of the W. Atlee Burpee Seed Co. in California, said to be the largest mail order seed firm in the world. Mr. Burpee has a passionate and abiding interest in the marigold, and in fact the plant scientists and breeders employed by his firm have done most of the development work which has made the modern marigold the popular flower it is today.

As I have mentioned before, the United States has no national floral emblem, although each of the individual states has an official state flower. Many blooms have been suggested as a national flower, including the rose, but most of these have already been adopted, either by another country or by one or more of the states.

David Burpee believes the ideal flower for the U.S. national emblem is the marigold and he has a lot of good arguments in its favor. He points out, for instance, that the marigold is a native of the Americas and grows wild nowhere else on earth. No other country or state has adopted it as an emblem and the flower will grow and thrive in every part of the United States, including Hawaii and Alaska—in fact, two of Burpee's 1961 marigold creations are named for these two states.

Burpee isn't content simply to offer his opinion on the marigold as a national emblem. He has had himself registered officially with the state department as a lobbyist on behalf of the marigold, he has prepared a draft of a bill which would make the marigold the official floral emblem of the United States and he has quite a bit of support in the House of Representatives for his plan.

David Burpee is most anxious to extend the color range of the marigold, thereby increasing its popularity. The natural colors are in the yellow and orange shades, extending to brown and maroon in the so-called French marigolds, but it is Mr. Burpee's ambition to see a pure white flower in the marigold range, for once this is achieved, the way will be open to introduce other colors. Burpee's geneticists have come fairly close to the white marigold, and the varieties Man in the Moon, Whitey and Alaska are all very pale yellow or even cream, but none has been without a trace of yellow in its coloring.

To speed up the search, Burpee has invited backyard gardeners the world over to participate, offering $10,000 to the first person who delivers to him seeds which produce a marigold 2½ inches across and as white as a snow-storm petunia. A number of seeds were sent in last year and, while none of them came pure white, four entries came close enough to win $100 awards of merit.

Our Colonist free seeds of the hybrid African marigold Summer Sunshine should ordinarily bloom in yellow or orange shades. Because they are hybrids, though, with rather unstable characteristics, anything could happen and it is quite within the bounds of possibility that one of your seeds could produce the long-sought $10,000 flower. Your chances are about the same as in winning the Irish sweepstake, but in this case your ticket doesn't cost you anything.

This is the last time I shall mention the free Summer Sunshine marigold seeds and, if you haven't written in for your free packet, I suggest you get the letter or coupon away this weekend. Don't forget to enclose a stamped and self-addressed envelope.

Attitudes Alter

Kids Still Heave Rocks

Aaah, the city! The city! You will probably live in one eventually if you don't already and you had better pay some attention. Just the other day, Lewis Mumford, one of the original scholars of cities, declared that cities of the United States were being made uninhabitable by the motorcar. Forty years ago the motorcar was the saviour of humanity. Today it's our mortal enemy.

Attitudes change. What, for instance, is poverty? Just the other day I went to see an utterly fascinating exhibition of photographs called "The Family, the Neighborhood, and the City" at New York University. There are 300 photographs there, all of New York, but what makes this exhibit so interesting is that these photographs range from those superb sociological documents taken by Jacob Riis in 1885 to photographs taken this year by Richard Saunders.

City Life 75 Years Ago Hasn't Changed Much

You will be chilled to note that neither the photography nor the living conditions seems to have improved much. There's a superb picture of an Italian mother and baby taken on the Lower East Side in what looks like an alleyway by Jacob Riis in 1885 and a fine photograph of a Puerto Rican mother and child taken this year. The Puerto Rican mother seems much sadder and more hopeless.

There is one group of photos under the headings: "Ruins, Rubble, and Asphalt" and it shows kids throwing rocks at each other on a pile of rubble of a new excavation.

People Stay Same

play on roofs when I was a kid. (Since the dawn of time mothers have tried to keep kids off roofs. They'll never succeed.)

Even when I was a kid, hanging around the candy store was a bad thing but these photographs make it seem idyllic, possibly because the candy store is rapidly disappearing. Banks seem to be taking over all the corner sites and no kid would dream of hanging around there.

One of Riis' pictures—intended to show the awfulness of it all—is a photograph of some of those square washstands with a round marble bowl and brass water faucets. I just saw one of those the other day in the home of one of the richest women in New York. Paid a pretty penny for it, she did, from an antique shop. You'd never guess that it was once the symbol of poverty.

Hollywood Today

By Sheilah Graham

Movies Beckon Goulet

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — Movies in the person of producer Jerry Wald, is beckoning Canadian Robert Goulet, the compelling Sir Lancelot of Broadway's "Camelot." Wald is so eager to sign the handsome singer-actor that he is looking for a picture which can be filmed in New York. Goulet cannot leave "Camelot" until the end of 1962.

Latest report on "Cleopatra": Elizabeth Taylor will make it in California—"when she is strong enough." Now the big question is, will an insurance company take a chance on Elizabeth? And if not, can the picture be made?

Belinda Lee, British actress killed here in an auto accident while reportedly driving 100 miles an hour with her Italian fiancé, recently starred in a prophetic movie titled, "Love Now, Pay Later." Belinda, who at one time hoped to marry Prince Orsini of Rome, paid with her life at a very young 26... Twosome at the voisin in New York—Florida Swanson and playwright Paddy Chayefsky.

Newlywed Carol Lynley wants you all to know she is not giving up her career as an actress. She is merely not returning to Hollywood because her husband, Mike Selsman, lives in New York. She will do television, plays and films, if they are in Manhattan. First on her schedule will probably be a "Play of the Week" for David Suskind. Talking of David, everyone who has seen it is full of praise for his movie version of "A Raisin in the Sun."

Tab Hunter was on the verge of marriage with Etchika Choudreau, then described as "the girl whose name sounds like a sneeze," some six or seven years ago. Now, Etchika is on the verge of marrying a king—Hassan II of Morocco. They have been dating for six years. Moroccans are not madly enthusiastic about the match. The lady is in her middle 30's, considered rather old for the bride of a North African monarch.

It takes all kinds. Efrem Zimbalist Jr., star of "77 Sunset Strip" and assorted films, met a school chum from Yale, while vacationing at the home he still owns in Connecticut. His friend told Efrem he was doing well as a lawyer, and concluded with, "and what are you doing these days?"

A note from the Savannah, Ga., Chamber of Commerce tells me that Gregory Peck has changed the locale of his new movie, "Cape Fear," from North Carolina to Savannah, where several of Hollywood's top pictures were made in the past, including "The Three Faces of Eve" and "The Young Don't Cry."

Advice to Margaret Leighton who I like very much. The best way to forget Laurence Harvey is to stop talking about him. Margaret was very much in love with her handsome ex-husband and is finding it hard to forget him. She is currently starring on the London stage in Ibsen's "The Lady from the Sea."

Did you know that Jackie Gleason turned back $11,000,000 to his car sponsor a few years ago, with the words, "if you hire us to do 'The Honeymooners' next season, you are making a big mistake. We cannot continue the pace because we cannot get good scripts each week. So I recommend that you don't sponsor us next season." They didn't.

Defiant CCF Balks At Health Budget

BULLETINS

Sudden illness of Health Minister Martin brought spectacular opposition filibuster to a close at press time this morning. He left the legislature before his estimates had been passed.

Premier Bennett early today tried to force closure of debate during health estimates but was finally ruled out of order after a wild shouting match across the floor of the House.

By PETER BRUTON

The CCF opposition held the whip hand last night as frayed tempers, worn thin through a gruelling series of night sittings, snapped as the Social Credit government tried to guarantee the end of the present session of the legislature today.

As each hour passed it appeared that further sittings would have to be held next week.

MARTIN VOTE

The legislative proceedings, snarled down last night over the departmental estimates of Health Minister Eric Martin. Main point of contention was the American Psychiatric Association report on mental health in B.C.

Health Minister Martin remained adamant that the report would not be tabled until after his estimates had been approved.

The CCF remained adamant that Mr. Martin's estimates would not be passed until the Ross report had been tabled.

MUST GIVE IN

Someone has to give in, but it appeared that debate would go on throughout the night before that stage was reached.

A lot of other legislative business remains to be done. This includes committee debates on the remaining 33 sections of the highly contentious labor legislation and third and final reading of the adjourned debate on the controversial Pacific Northern Railway Act which exempts the Wenner-Gren railroad from Public Utilities Commission jurisdiction. Eleven other bills, 20 motions, and other business.

Sittings of the legislature will be held up today but it is up to the opposition whether the House can prorogue.

Some of the remaining legislation may only come up for discussion and vote today with the unanimous consent of the legislature.

If the CCF wants to do so it can force sittings after today by refusing to give its consent.

OLD SAYING

"It is abundantly clear that the old saying that a government can say when a session will start but the opposition says when it will end is correct," said Dan Campbell (SC—Comox).

Earlier in the day the opposition had said they expected quick passage of Health Minister Martin's estimates.

But the minister's refusal to allow the Ross report to be tabled before his estimates had passed angered the opposition.

It was learned that while there was only one copy of the report available the department has prepared a detailed précis of the main recommendations.

The report was written by Dr. Matthew Ross after a province-wide survey of present mental health services in B.C.

CRITICISM SEEN

Observers believe that the minister does not want the opposition to learn of critical aspects of these services until after his estimates have passed—and the estimates provide the only remaining place where such a discussion can be held this session.

Gordon Dowling (CCF—Burnaby) said the House could not possibly agree to the passing of the minister's salary vote until they had seen a copy.

"I think it is reprehensible," he said. "You are asking us to vote blind. It is an insult to this legislature."

SUM CITED

He said one vote in the departmental estimates called for the expenditure of $100,000 to implement recommendations in the Ross report and yet the opposition didn't know what these recommendations were.

"You better get a messenger and get the report and send it over to us right now," he said.

Temper flared shortly before midnight.

John Squire (CCF—Alberni) said the members had been dragged through the hoops for two weeks.

REASON GIVEN

"This is the reason tempers are on edge," he said. "Members are touchy and we are not making any headway."

"When men get like this there is not too much room for understanding," he added.

"I blame it solely on the premier."

Attorney General Robert Bonner said something to CCF Leader Robert Strachan, sitting across the aisle.

TEEMED BOOR

"You always have to be a real boor, don't you," said the CCFer.

"I have been watching you for too long and maybe I rubbed off," retorted Mr. Bonner.

In Laos Issue

BANGKOK, Thailand—The Western powers Friday put up a firm front in a move to halt fighting in the Southeast Asian Kingdom of Laos and anxiously awaited a reply from Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

These steps came as a threat of another Korean-type war deepened with the pro-Western government of Laos reporting that troops from Communist North Viet Nam had crossed into Laos to join Laotian rebel troops in attacks against the already hard-pressed royal troops.

While both Britain and the United States left the door open for negotiation to end the fighting in Laos, there was strong evidence that the U.S. would not back down in the face of force.

Britain sent Russia a proposal that a cease-fire be called in Laos and negotiations for a settlement be opened under a three-power commission with Canada, India and Poland as members. The three-power commission was first set up by the 1954 Geneva conference to settle differences in Indochina.

NEW INTERVENTION

In Laos, Royal troops were reported to have withdrawn from the town of Kam Keut, 40 miles east of the Thailand frontier. The government announced nine battalions of North Vietnamese troops had opened a "massive new intervention" against the Royal troops.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy yesterday won the powerful support of neutralist Indian Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru in his efforts to get Kremlin acceptance of a truce in the boiling Laotian crisis.

Disclosure that Kennedy had sent a successful personal bid to the Indian leader came as Moscow sources reported that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev would discuss the Laotian situation with seven other heads of European Communist states Tuesday. A Red Chinese representative will be on hand as an observer.

LONDON (Reuters)—Britain said Friday there is a "good chance" Russia would accept its peace formula for Laos. The Earl of Home, Britain's foreign secretary, expressed confidence that a political settlement will be reached before leaving by air for a Southeast Asia Treaty Organization conference in Bangkok.

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The Soviet Union Friday opened a campaign to kill the United Nations Congo operation by chopping its financial lifeline.

Soviet delegate A. A. Roschin said the question of financing the Congo force should come under the 11-member Security Council—in which Russia has a veto—and not under the 99-member General Assembly.

REFUSED TO PAY

The Soviet Union has all along refused to pay any Congo costs and has demanded withdrawal of the force. Friday's blast was regarded as another attempt to bring down UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld.

Launching his attack in the financial committee, Roschin in passing charged that Hammarskjöld had usurped the functions of the security council by deciding what troops should be sent to the Congo.

RUSSIA OBJECTED

Hammarskjöld had sent Canadian, Swedish and Irish forces even though Russia as a member of the security council objected to the sending of forces from Western bloc.

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI)—Five West European diplomats yesterday were ordered expelled from Stanleyville by self-styled Premier Antoine Gizenga because their governments do not recognize his Soviet-supported regime.

But he added that no decision will be taken on acquisition of nuclear warheads "until a satisfactory agreement on joint control of such warheads" has been worked out with the United States.

He said the Bomarc anti-aircraft missile, Honest John artillery rocket and CF-104 low-level jet bomber have a nuclear capability "and they do not achieve their full potential without a nuclear warhead."

Mr. Harkness reiterated that the government has no intention of having nuclear weapons manufactured in Canada or of acquiring any kind of strategic nuclear weapon—such as a long-range missile or heavy bomber.

He again hinted that the government will obtain a new manned jet interceptor for the RCAF.

Mr. Harkness warned the Soviet Union was developing a "stand-off" bomber which would be able to fire nuclear missiles 1,000 miles to hit its target in the next two years.

The sharp difference apparently means the government has some heavy spending in store before closing out its books.

B.C. Would Do It
Under Guarantee

Premier Bennett yesterday came up with a startling new proposal for the development of the Columbia River power project—either Ottawa can build the $450,000,000 scheme on its own or B.C. will do it with a federal guarantee that the cost of power will not exceed 4.25 mills.

The proposal was made to federal Finance Minister Donald Fleming who flew here for the long-awaited financing negotiations.

Meanwhile, in Ottawa, Prime Minister Diefenbaker told the House of Commons that the Columbia River treaty definitely will be submitted to parliament for ratification but the date has not been determined.

The possibility of a joint financing of the huge power development with Ottawa and B.C. sharing costs from the start was also discussed at the meeting. Premier Bennett told the legislature yesterday afternoon.

He stressed the fact that the talks were friendly but added that there would be no formal or definite agreement between the two governments at the present time.

It was the first time B.C. has offered Ottawa the right to build the dams and transmission facilities on its own.

Finance Minister Fleming said later that the discussions will continue today.

B.C.'s first proposal was:

● Ottawa would build the storage dams and transmission lines.

● Ottawa would pay "generous compensation" to those residents whose homes and property would be flooded.

● B.C. would receive the $64,000,000 U.S. payment for flood control indemnities and would keep this money forever, using only the interest payments.

● Ottawa would pay B.C. $4,000,000 for engineering studies conducted to date.

● Ottawa would guarantee "by appropriate financial measures" that the net cost of Columbia River power delivered to the Vancouver area would not exceed 4.25 mills.

● Ottawa would arrange with U.S. authorities, should any Columbia River power become surplus, to sell such power in the U.S. at a price not lower than 4.25 mills per kilowatt hour.

Ottawa has consistently stated that Columbia River power can be delivered in Vancouver for less than four mills. Now B.C. has given Ottawa extra leeway and told the federal authorities, in effect, to put up or shut up.

Mr. Fleming refused to make any specific comment on the proposals but said "very thorough" discussions had been held on all aspects.

The ownership of the entire project would revert to B.C. after 50 years or at such time as the project was paid for, whichever is the sooner.

Asked if he was surprised at this part of the proposal Mr. Fleming told reporters: "In this political life one should never be surprised at anything."

The second proposal as outlined by Premier Bennett was:

● B.C. would build and pay for the dams and facilities on its own.

● Ottawa would have full access to engineering data and "scrutiny and approval of all contracts" in the same manner as present Trans-Canada Highway projects.

"I came here in the hope that the discussions would facilitate the earliest possible start on the Columbia development and Premier Bennett has indicated quite clearly that it is his wish also," said Mr. Fleming.

Asked if he now felt Ottawa was wrong in suggesting that B.C. was trying to hold up the Columbia development, the federal minister said: "I trust there won't be any suggestion of a delay on anyone's part. Both sides are deeply interested in progressing."

No Inferior Weapons
For Canada—Harkness

REGINA (CP)—Defence Minister Harkness said Friday night it is the policy of the government that Canadian forces should not be required to face a potential enemy with inferior weapons.

But he added that no decision will be taken on acquisition of nuclear warheads "until a satisfactory agreement on joint control of such warheads" has been worked out with the United States.

He said the Bomarc anti-aircraft missile, Honest John artillery rocket and CF-104 low-level jet bomber have a nuclear capability "and they do not achieve their full potential without a nuclear warhead."

This city of 192,000 population, a humming port and industrial centre, was the hardest

Officials at Reggio Calabria, a port of 60,000 on the Italian mainland seven miles away across Messina Strait, reported less serious damage. But the panic there was the same.

Older residents of both cities could remember the terror of 1908, when 77,283 persons perished.

The first shock struck with a force that knocked the needle from the Messina observatory seismograph.

The cities have a long history of trouble dating back to 336 BC when they were wrecked by the Carthaginians. Since then they have been razed by the Saracens, seized by the Normans, bombarded by the Neapolitans, badly damaged by the earthquake of 1873, destroyed by the quake of 1898 and damaged again in the Second World War.

Scots, U.S. Defeat Canadian Curlers

PERTH, Scotland (CP)—The Scottish team skipped by Willie McIntosh, defeated the Canadians 15-4 Friday to post the most one-sided score in Scotch Cup curling history. Earlier the United States team from Seattle scored a startling 13-6 win over Canada.

The losses meant Canada lost its opportunity to clinch its third straight world curling title and forced a three-way playoff among the teams.

Canada meets the U.S. team, skipped by Dr. Frank Crealock today at Perth and the winner of that game faces Scotland for the title at Edinburgh, March 30.

"The boys and myself just couldn't get onto the ice," Canadian skip Hec Gervais of Edmonton said. "I missed wide open takeout shots. In fact we couldn't get the weight at all."

Canada's Ken Watson said the upset was "a startling day in curling. This was a black Friday for Hec Gervais and his Edmonton rink."

He said the team crumbled in the last six ends because the front end was not supporting Gervais and that Gervais himself lost "the magic touch."

Canada led Scotland 3-2 going into the fifth end. Then the Scots scored two on the fifth end, one on the sixth and five on the seventh. Play stopped after 11 ends with the score at 15-4.

In the morning match against the U.S. Canada failed to hold a 5-1 lead after four ends. The U.S. team scored on the next five ends.

Bears Large—And Lethal

University of California Golden Bears, a large and lethal rugby side, have a record that bears looking into.

Depending upon whether or not they win today's World Cup match against University of British Columbia in Vancouver, they will be undefeated in 37 (or 38) of their last 40 matches when they play Victoria's Crimson Tide in an exhibition match Monday at Royal Athletic Park at 8:30.

UBC is favored in today's match, primarily because it was the Thunderbirds who beat Cal, 8-3, Feb. 25 to snap a 35-game unbeaten streak that stretched back to an April 4, 1958, match in Vancouver.

If it's any consolation to the Tide, it will be facing probably one of the weakest Cal teams in some years, despite the impressive record. For this season, Cal's record is six victories, two losses and a tie.

Leading the Cal team will be Dr. Miles Hudson, who has coached the side for 22 years.

Tide will probably get a good scouting report on the California side in today's game. Referee for the match is Dave Mackenzie of Victoria, who will be bringing back as much information as possible on the strength and weaknesses (if any) on the Cal club.

Tide's lineup will be the same as the one that played in the McKechnie Cup series, with one exception. Til Briggs, who was forced out of the cup series with an injury, will be at his regular second row forward spot in place of Chris Pollard.

Eight Rinks Boast 4-0 Marks In Comox Valley's Bonspiel

By JIM TANG

COURTENAY — Gar Taylor's Victoria rink was among eight still unbeaten here after last night's late draws in the annual men's bonspiel at Comox Valley Curling Club.

Taylor, Lyall Dagg of Vancouver, Bob Fuller of Nanaimo and Joe McClure, Grant McDonald and Gordon Pollock all had 4-0 records to lead in the grand aggregate. H. Bayer of Powell River was 3-0 and Lorne Irwin of Courtenay had won both his two games.

Out to the eighth in the "A" primary were Taylor, Fred Dingwell and Terry Law of Courtenay, and McDonald had reached the eighth of the "B" primary.

Taylor beat Pete Prest of Duncan, 8-7, and Jack Coates of Nanaimo, 11-10 yesterday to reach the eighth of both primaries.

As for the other four Victoria rinks, Bob McDonald reached the eighth of the "A" secondary; Larry Marshall made the 16s of the "B" secondary; Jim Tang advanced to the 16s of the "A" secondary, and Al Clevette made the 16s of both the "A" primary and the "B" secondary.

Tang beat Ken Smith of Vancouver, 14-2, then lost 7-6 to Gordon Pollock of Comox RCAF. Marshall beat Prest, 7-6, then lost to Coates, 9-8, and to McClure, 10-7.

McIntosh defeated Terry Law of Comox RCAF, 10-6, but was beaten by Dagg, 14-5. Clevette beat J. McNabb of Courtenay, 9-4, then lost to Fuller, 7-4.

Pre-Midget Cage Meet On Today

First United boys and Duncan girls will defend their titles today in the annual B.C. pre-midget basketball tournament at the First United Fellowship Hall.

First game starts at 8:45 a.m. and the final at 7:15 p.m. Sooke, Nanaimo, Alberni, Cumberland, Duncan, and St. Patrick's, St. Louis' College and First United of Victoria teams are entered in the boys' division. Competing with Duncan for the girls' title will be teams from Sooke, Port Alberni, Brentwood, Tsolium and Nanaimo.

Later, officials changed the order of finish. Hansen had driven one full lap farther than Leiss. Leiss finished third.

The race was the first of three preliminaries for today's 12-hour Sebring endurance road race. Drivers in 65 cars will start the grueling test at 7 a.m. EST over the snake-like 5.2-mile course.

Finishing behind the leaders were five Sebring Sprites, a car with tremendous control on the curves. The drivers in order were Stirling Moss, England; Ed Leavens, London, Ont.; Bruce McLaren, New Zealand; Pat Moss, England, and Briggs Cunningham, Green Farms, Conn.

Moss, 31-year-old British champion, will drive a Ferrari team entry in the long grind today.

Hebert added a 68 Friday over the 6,632-yard, par 36-72 Bayshore course to his first-round 66. Day Brewer Jr. and Julius Boros tied for second place at 135 and Bob Brue edged into fourth, one stroke behind.

Horse Killed at Aintree In Grand National Prelim

LONDON (AP)—Aintree's killer race track claimed the life of one more horse Friday as 36 of the world's finest steeplechasers tuned up for today's Grand National.

Tokoro, favorite to win the Midway Steeplechase over part of the Grand National course, fell at the second fence and was so badly injured he had to be shot. Only four horses out of eight starters finished the race.

The tragedy showed the crowd that the Grand National is still the world's toughest horse race, even though the approaches to some of the Aintree jumps have been modified.

Officials have tried to redesign the approaches so as to steady up the horses as they prepare to take the fences. But they still brought down horses Friday on a track left firm and fast by a freak spell of dry weather.

Friday's spectacle—horses and jockeys rolling on the turf as they tried to dodge the thundering hooves of their rivals—was a sign that the Grand National could live up to its grim traditions. In the last 15 years 554 horses have competed in the race and only 137 reached the finish line.

At the final call-over Friday night, leading bookmakers still made Merryman II a clear favorite to win for the second straight year.

Merryman II was given odds of 9-1. Thursday his odds were 6-1.

Jonjo Odds Down

Meanwhile Jonjo, the new second favorite, came down to 11-1. He was a 25-1 shot until a horse named John's Court won the Lincolnshire Handicap last Wednesday and flashed a red light to the bookies.

Thousands of Britons have linked Jonjo and John's Court in a "spring double" bet because their names are alike. That means the bookies could lose heavily if Jonjo comes in first, so they have shortened his odds drastically to discourage bettors from putting any more money on him.

Russia's two 100-1 hopes, Grif and Relief, moved in to Aintree Friday and joined the other horses in practice canters. They have been training 14 miles away.

Longden Rides 5,500 Heading for 6,000

ALBANY, Calif. (AP)—The filly and she got up in the last stride to win by a head. There was no special ceremony. "We'll have something special when he wins number 6,000," a track spokesman said with a laugh.

The 54-year-old Longden hit the mark on Spring Victory in the third race at Golden Gate. The crowd gave Longden—who grew up in Taber, Alta.—a rousing cheer when the track announcer called out the 5,500 figure.

Longden grinned hugely as he climbed off his mount. Longden's boosters have been sweating out the 5,500 figure since March 4. He closed out that Saturday with 5,499.

"I waited for days and days to ride number 5,000 and this one was even more elusive," he said.

Spring victory didn't seem to have a chance as she rounded the turn for home six lengths behind Neck-N-Neck. But Longden, known as The Pumper, really pumped the Trail Takes Opener In Coy Cup Hockey

TRAIL—Trail Hotel Friday night took the first game of the best-of-three Coy Cup intermediate hockey final series by defeating Nanaimo, 4-2.

Trail went out to the front and stayed there despite steadily-improved play on the part of Nanaimo. The home team led 2-0 at the end of the first period and 4-0 at the end of the second.

Ernie Seco and Leo Mailey scored for Trail in the first period and Gil Desrosiers and Ken Cook scored in the second. Stan Berry and Bruno Furlan scored for Nanaimo in the last two minutes of the game.

Second game will be played here tonight.

Nanaimo—Goal: Lumley; defense: Williams, Robinson, Furlan; forward: Seco, Desrosiers, Mailey, Cook, Furlan, Berry, Peterson, Stenhouse, Haddon, Lachini, Desrosiers, Furlan, Palmer, Seco, Birkow, Cook, McKinnon, Mailey, Robinson and Ryman.

Last night's scores: Seattle 5 at VIG (overtime); Portland 3 at Vancouver 2 (overtime).
Next games: tonight—Portland at Seattle; Spokane at Calgary.

Seattle Totems finished with a rush to beat them, 5-3, before a crowd of about 2,500 at Memorial Arena.

It was a golden opportunity for the Cougars, as Spokane Comets obligingly knocked off Edmonton Flyers for the eighth time this season.

They gave it a good try, but loaded too much work on three pairs of shoulders. Cougars could never get an attack going unless the Bill Saunders-Barrie Ross-Doug Macauley unit was on the ice. The trio got all three goals, and took most of the paltry 18 shots the club managed against Bev Bentley.

At that they almost made it, and it wasn't until 19:55 of the final period, when Tom Macauley scored on an empty net, that they could really be counted out.

Macauley was at his clever best to give Cougars a 1-0 lead with 52 seconds gone in the second period. Ross came down the left boards, slammed on the brakes just over the blue line, and fed a pass to Saunders. The relay went to Macauley, who waited for Bentley to make his move and put the puck over him for his 23rd goal of the season.

THAT WAS IT
But that was it for Cougars, thanks to a slight letdown and a man named Eddie Staniewicz, an ex-flyer doing his best to get Edmonton into the playoffs.

He eluded a half-hearted check to sweep around the Cougar net and slip the puck into an open corner at 10:11, and after Pelletier had made a great save on Gord Tansley, was back at 16:14 on a play with Gerry Leonard and Murray Wilkie for the winner.

Seattle—Goal: Bentley; defense: Hunt, Sinclair, Arnet, Tansley; forwards: Pilling, Flinder, McVie, Ehrenverth, Bolek, Wilkie, Staniewicz, MacFarland, Leonard.

VICTORIA—Goal: Pelletier; defense: McLeod, Currie, Ray, Amadio; forwards: Oser, Ford, Saunders, Anderson.

'Dangerous' Boatman Fined $100

A power-cruiser operator yesterday was swatted with a $100 fine for circling the full-speeding ferry Mv Sidney so close that the ferry's skipper said he could have "jumped into the boat" without difficulty.

A stiff warning to all yachtsmen to heed rules of sea lanes went with the fine levied against Leonard William Rawluk, of Vancouver, after his conviction in Sidney police court on a charge of dangerous navigation.

PREVOST ISLAND

Charge was laid by the Mv. Sidney's master, Capt. Thomas Parkinson, following an incident Sept. 10 near Prevost Island, south of Active Pass.

Phillip Birkett of Sidney, second mate of the Sidney, said he was on duty on the bridge at the time.

"I observed a power cruiser overtaking us on the starboard side," he said. "It ran alongside, about 40 feet from the ferry, went ahead to about 70 feet in front of the Sidney, then cut across the bow and proceeded down the port side, again at a distance of about 40 feet from the ship's side."

NEAR STERN He said the cruiser made a turn near the stern of the Sidney, then came back along the port side, still about 30 or 40 feet away, before turning and heading toward Active Pass.

The second mate said he noted the cruiser's registration number when it went by on its final run.

Speed of the Sidney at the time was 18 knots, he said, and he estimated the speed of the cruiser as at least 40 knots.

SAFETY AND HALF Answering questions put by Cpl. William Stanton, of Sidney RCMP detachment, acting as prosecutor, the mate said that at 18 knots it would take the Sidney a mile and one-half to come to a full stop in case anything happened.

Mr. Birkett said the danger involved was his lack of knowledge of what the other craft was going to do. He made note of the affair because the small craft was operating in a manner dangerous to navigation, life and limb.

Capt. Parkinson, veteran of 30 years at sea, and Quartermaster Archie McLean, with the RCN 16 years before retirement and now on the Sidney, said that at one point the small boat was so close he could have jumped into it without any difficulty.

FATHER WITH HIM Mr. Rawluk said he had his father from Galliano Island and friend Ole N. Johansen of North Vancouver with him in the cruiser at the time.

He was expecting another friend to join them for the weekend from Vancouver, and thought he might be aboard the Sidney.

With this in mind he came on the Sidney at a 60-degree angle from behind, then ran alongside "250 to 300 feet" off to the starboard.

SPEEDED UP P "They didn't see him," he said, "so I speeded up and overtook the Sidney, went ahead 800 or 1,000 yards, then cut across her bow at about 40 miles per hour, and went on, and still about 250 or 300 feet away."

Principal danger involved, Cpl. Stanton pointed out at one time, was in the chance of the smaller boat breaking down while crossing the ferry's bow.

Cpl. Stanton argued that there was no debating the fact that Rawluk's boat was overtaking. Rules of the road for small craft specify that an overtaking boat shall keep out of the way of the vessel being overtaken, and avoid crossing ahead of it.

"There have been many complaints of 'buzzing' operations by small boats," he said. "They get a boat with lots of power under them and like to feel a burst of speed."

Politics Protested As City Locals Leave Labor Body

Street Railwayman's Union and at least two other union locals have disaffiliated from the Victoria Labor Council in protest of political action, it was learned last night.

A spokesman for Local 100 of the Street Railwaymen's Union, which represents B.C. Electric bus drivers, said his 200-member local withdrew from the council "about two months ago."

The spokesman, who asked that his name be not used at this time, said a letter was sent to the council stating the local's stand of refusing association with any political action "either in the council or in the local union division."

The union has since been urged by the council to reconsider its action, but no further action is contemplated, the spokesman said.

He added that he knew of "at least two other locals" which had also disaffiliated from the council for similar reasons.

Labor council president Robert Barrie last night confirmed withdrawal of the railwaymen's union.

He also confirmed the loss of two other unions, but wouldn't identify them.

Last fall the Victoria branch of the B.C. Government Employees' Association pulled out of the council in opposition to the active support of the New Party.

Mr. Barrie said the latest withdrawals were dealt with by the council as a committee of the whole when the unions questioned financial reports showing contributions for political purposes.

The council, he said, "hasn't received any complaints" from other member unions.

Mr. Barrie said he didn't want to comment on the withdrawals. Council has decided to "leave them alone" to reconsider their actions.

Couldn't Get Drink Logger Hits Waiter

NANAIMO — A Campbell River logging operator who struck a cocktail bar waiter in the eye after being refused a drink Friday paid a $75 fine for common assault in police court.

Albert Furness pleaded guilty of assaulting waiter Patrick Canning in the Malaspina Hotel bar on Feb. 23.

Const. William Healey, prosecuting, said as a result of the blow, Canning now has a double vision and this condition will likely continue for another month.

Hugh B. Heath, representing Furness, explained that his client went into the cocktail bar in his working clothes.

Before going into the bar, Furness had been drinking. Mr. Heath said when the waiter refused to serve his client, Furness thought he was being discriminated against "by reason of his clothing."

Magistrate Lionel Beevor Potts disagreed that Furness had been discriminated against. "I have seen a number of men in the cocktail bar in working clothes. There has been no objection. Probably the reason why Furness was refused was because he had had sufficient to drink."

Child Survives 15-Foot Drop From Window

By JACK FRY

A 20-month-old Victoria West boy survived a 15-foot plunge to the ground yesterday from an open second-storey window at his home.

James Leslie Scott Matheson, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Matheson, who live in an upper apartment at 645 Pine Street, apparently uninjured by the fall, is in satisfactory condition at St. Joseph's Hospital, where he was kept overnight for observation.

INCHES FROM ROCK He landed on the ground, inches from a concrete sidewalk and rocks in a flower garden.

A neighbor, Mrs. Richard McGaw, who lives in the lower apartment at the same address, was standing on her front steps when the toddler plummeted to the ground several feet away.

WET CLOTHES Mrs. McGaw bounded up the steps to tell Mrs. Matheson what had happened. They telephoned a doctor, who called a police ambulance and the women applied wet cloths to the boy's head until police arrived.

"I thanked the Lord all the way down there to hospital," said Mrs. Matheson. "He could have landed on the cement or on those rocks. Gee, he was lucky."

She said she thought her son was trying to get to the front yard where the other children were playing and that he went through the window because the apartment door was closed.

TAKE HER PULSE Mrs. Matheson didn't think to take her pulse with her to hospital, where she was stranded without transportation.

"I had to walk home. I felt so stupid. I didn't want to ask someone for 13 cents," she said.

"He screamed first, and I went out front. I had just said,

UP IN THE AIR: Federal Finance Minister Donald Fleming told this story to the Canadian Club luncheon yesterday by way of explaining the progress of his Columbia River talks with Premier Bennett.

A Canadian in New York was looking out of a window on the 38th floor of a skyscraper when he saw a man jump from the 50th floor.

As the body hurtled past the window the Canadian called: "How is everything?"

The falling man quickly replied: "Everything's fine—so far!"

TOP BILLING: Those Equimalt-Saanich Tories are hell-bent on boosting their federal byelection candidate George Chatterton.

Advertisements for last night's Conservative rally gave Mr. Chatterton bigger billing than federal Finance Minister Donald Fleming.

END OF THE AFFAIR: It's funny how the rush to finish all the legislative business takes precedence over everything else in the dying stages of a session.

Health Minister Eric Martin has a knack of angering the opposition by castigating them with a fiery tongue—a move that prolongs debate.

Yesterday, with his departmental estimates still to come and everyone waiting to get home quickly, Mr. Martin was pointedly said to keep tight reins on his tongue so the opposition wouldn't get mad.

PLAY NOW, PAY LATER: The CCF brought an angry Premier Bennett to his feet yesterday with a threat that the House would sit all next week, including Good Friday.

The CCF voted against "leave be granted" to receive a report from the legislature's public accounts committee—a move that means two days must go by before the report can be introduced.

"We'll adjourn until next week. If you like," snapped the Premier—still shooting to

No Drug Stockpile Ready in Disaster

NANAIMO—If this part of Vancouver Island had casualties from a thermonuclear attack, doctors would have to rush to the nearest drug store for medical supplies, Dr. C. J. G. Mackenzie said Thursday.

Director of the Central V.I. Health Unit, Dr. Mackenzie disclosed the shortage of emergency medical supplies during his annual report.

He stated that should an attack take place "Our medical services in this area will probably break down completely."

Reason for this, said the doctor, is that the number of casualties confronting doctors "may be overwhelming as they will lack equipment."

He said last October press reports mentioned stockpiles of medical equipment were being made available to advance treatment centres.

"Absolutely none of it is immediately available to me as the zone medical officer."

The doctor added that to the "best of my knowledge none of this equipment exists on Vancouver Island."

PARKSVILLE — A long-sought project, the installation of curbs and gutters in Parksville, may now be realized according to a letter received by the village council from Dan Campbell, M.L.A.

In the letter Mr. Campbell states that a promise made during the election campaign will be kept regarding the project and requests a meeting with the council to discuss the matter after the present session.

The request for curbs and gutters by Parksville commissioners has been going on since 1956 long before the 30-50 cost sharing plan was initiated by the government.

NANAIMO — Since the Central Vancouver Island Health Unit was formed 16 years ago, population within its boundaries has skyrocketed from 44,000 to 100,000.

Dr. C. J. G. Mackenzie, unit director, reported at the annual meeting Thursday that the population during the last three years has been increasing at the rate of 1,400 every 12 months.

The doctor said there were 637 deaths last year with heart disease being the main cause followed by cancer.

PORT ALBERNI — Sherry Green, 13-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Green, Alberni, will reign over Empire Day celebrations here.

A grade seven student of A. W. Neill Junior High School, Sherry will be crowned in a ceremony highlighting the weekend celebrations being sponsored by the BPO Elks Lodge.

Chosen as her maids of honor are Heidi Blaser, 911 Sixth Avenue North, Port Alberni, of Smith Memorial School, and Mary Lou Whitaker, Cameron Heights, Port Alberni, of Alberni District

Albert Sutton, English-born printer who has spent 23 years in the provincial government's printing bureau, has been named Queen's Printer, Provincial Secretary Black announced yesterday.

He succeeds Don McDiarmid, who died last week after holding the post since 1946.

Mr. Sutton worked for the Manchester Guardian in 1923, left England in 1930 and joined the staff of the Calgary Alberta commercial printing department.

He came to Victoria in 1936 to join the government printing bureau.

VIEW FROM THE SOUTH: Our legislature and our legislators get the full treatment in a five-page, profusely illustrated piece in this week's issue of the Seattle Times "Sunday Pictorial" magazine.

A big color picture of the illuminated legislature with the fountain in front is on the cover while inside are 11 photographs of the legislature at work and at play.

Article by C. L. Anderson begins: "Reminders of the battle of the British people to win freedom from an absolute monarchy can be seen during a session of the parliament of British Columbia in Victoria."

One more point: Some of the photographs taken by Ted Brundage appear to have been taken with telephoto lens which Mr. Speaker Hugh Shantz has forbidden B.C. photographers to use.

NORTH COWICHAN—The municipality of North Cowichan has turned down an invitation to advertise in Chemainus High School's annual year book.

Reeve Don Morton said council had agreed to advertise last year "only because it was their first publication." He added that in the past, council had been inclined to be a "little bit free" with money for advertising.

CROFTON—A Crofton man required hospital treatment after his car overturned in a ditch on Crofton Road Thursday night.

Earl Heggland was discharged from Chemainus Hospital after being treated for facial lacerations and other cuts and bruises.

The car, a 1955 model, was written off as a total wreck.

NANAIMO—A public meeting Tuesday to find a solution to the Vancouver Island Exhibition Association's difficulties has been called off.

Association president Cyril Edgington said as several city groups may come up with a workable plan to save the V.I.E. from disbanding, there is no point in holding the meeting.

Mr. Edgington said the Junior Chamber of Commerce with the civic properties commission and the exhibition board are co-operating to find a solution to the organization's problems—which include a $54,000 debt.

NANAIMO — Nine plays will be presented at the Mid-Island Drama Festival at Cedar Community Hall from April 5 to 8.

Owen Morgan, chairman of the festival committee said the entries will be presented on three nights with the fourth evening set aside for honor performances.

St. Peter's Players of Nanaimo will be taking part in this year's competition after being dormant for several years.

Other groups that will compete include Shawinigan Lake, Dunbar, Ladysmith, Yellow Point.

DUNCAN — An adult polio clinic for those who have had their first and second shots will be held in the Central V.I. Health Unit, Canada Avenue, on Monday night from 7 to 8.

First shots will be given to anyone not previously inoculated.

PARKSVILLE — Parksville village council gave $300 to the Chamber of Commerce to assist in the "1961 Tourist Dollar Campaign" now underway.

Council also approved a grant of $300 to the Recreation Commission to go towards Red Cross Swimming classes this summer.

A letter was received from Highways Minister Gagliardi in reply to a request for a warning signal on the Island Highway in front of the fire hall stating that the matter is being considered.

NANAIMO — Having had only one pay hike in the last five years sanitary inspector Archie Hill has received backing of the Central Vancouver Island Union Board of Health for a salary increase.

The board will ask school boards and municipal councils in area to join in an appeal to the minister of health for a pay boost for Mr. Hill.

The last increase Mr. Hill received was when the general adjustment of civil service salaries was made in 1959.

NANAIMO — New chairman of the Central V.I. Union of Board of Health is Alex Smith of Ladysmith. He replaces Aid. W. G. Goldard of Port Alberni.

Ald. George Bryce of Nanaimo was re-elected vice chairman.

DUNCAN—A group of Indian singers and dancers will stage a concert in the Cowichan High School auditorium tonight at 8 o'clock.

The concert, sponsored by the Knights of Columbus, will feature Chief Dan George and his talented family from North Vancouver, the St. Paul dancing group and a six-piece orchestra.

Program will include an Indian operetta and a special staging of "Music and Dances of the Nations." Chief George is well known to TV viewers for his roles in the series "Cariboo Country."

PARKSVILLE — The village commission gave this reading to the water extension bylaw and it was decided to arrange a meeting with a representative of Pacific Water Wells Limited and Russell Potter, consulting engineer for the village to discuss the drilling of a well near Englishman River to augment the municipal water supply.

Approval was given for the installation of two fluorescent street lamps on Craig Road near the new post office.

NANAIMO — First general dinner meeting of the Nanaimo Chamber of Commerce of the 1961 season will be held March 28 at the Malaspina Hotel.

A reception at 6 p.m. will precede the dinner. Guest speaker will be Maurice Finerty, president of the British Columbia Chamber of Commerce.

NANAIMO — A $2,455,404 budget was approved by rural representatives from School District 66 at a Wednesday meeting with school trustees.

This year's estimates are a 4.52-per-cent increase over the 1960 total of $2,349,300.

School population has increased by 6.6 per cent.

Biggest chunk out of this year's estimates will be taken by teachers' salaries, amounting to about $1,300,000.

PORT ALBERNI — Arthur Melvin Christensen, resident here for five years, died suddenly Wednesday at the age of 59.

Mr. Christensen was stricken while visiting the CPR roundhouse.

Born in Mid. Minnesota, he came here during construction of the paper mill where he was employed.

CHEMAMUN — R. Pattison has been elected president of the Chemainus Chamber of Commerce. Other officers: W. S. Robertson, Helge Staffanson, Mrs. J. Russell Robinson, Eric Robinson, Mrs. N. McMorin, Austin Renfrew, M. Vauthrin, J. L. Kirkpatrick, Eric Guest and W. Check.

The annual meeting passed a vote of thanks to retiring president James Webster, whose term of office saw the best attendance in chamber history here.

Debate Closure Fails CCF Fight Goes On

BULLETIN
The legislature began its adjourned committee debate on the government's new labor legislation at 1.55 a.m. today but gave up at 2.25. House sits again on this bill at 2 p.m., with 34 sections to go.

By PETER BRUTON

Health Minister Eric Martin was forced to go home sick early this morning after an all-out-opposition attack over the minister's refusal to table the American Psychiatric Association report on B.C. mental health services.

The sensational development came shortly before 1 a.m. after an impasse had been reached during debate on the minister's salary estimates.

The debate saw Premier Bennett try — and fail — to force closure of the discussion a few minutes before his minister was incapacitated.

DONNYBROOK
At 2.15 this morning the legislature threatened to flare up into what Committee Chairman William Murray said he feared would become a donnybrook.

Flareup came when Leo Nimick (CCF—Cranbrook) said the premier might not be able to make good his reservations in Hawaii.

Angered, Premier Bennett rose on a point of order: "We don't intend to take these kind of remarks."

Africa Area Soon Free

LONDON (Reuters)—Colonial Secretary Iain Macleod left by air Friday night for Tanganyika to arrange a new constitution giving the East African trust territory full, internal self-government.

Minister Falls Ill, Gives Up

Everyone seemed to be on the feet at once and acting chairman William Murray (SC—Prince Rupert) banged for order.

Mr. Dowding tried to make a point of order but was told to sit down. He refused to do so.

"Who do you think you are?" said Premier Bennett.

"Who do you think you are?" countered Randolph Harding.

"Who do you think you are?" said the premier again.

"Who do you think you are?" repeated Mr. Harding.

Other CCFers charged there were special rules in the house for the government.

OLD SAYING
"It is abundantly clear that the old saying that a government will start but the opposition will end is correct," said Dan Campbell (SC—Comox).

Earlier in the day the opposition had said they expected quick passage of Health Minister Martin's estimates.

But the minister's refusal to allow the Ross report to be tabled before his estimates had passed angered the opposition.

ONE COPY
It was learned that while there was only one copy of the report available the department has prepared a detailed precis of the main recommendations.

The report was written by Dr. Mathew Ross after a province-wide survey of present mental health services in B.C.

CRITICISM SEEN
Observers believe that the minister does not want the opposition to learn of critical aspects of these services until after his estimates have passed — and the estimates provide the only remaining place where such a discussion can be held this session.

Gordon Dowding (CCF—Burnaby) said the House could not possibly agree to the passing of the minister's salary vote until they had seen a copy.

"I think it is reprehensible," he said. "You are asking us to vote blind. It is an insult to this legislature."

SUM CITED
He said one vote in the departmental estimates called for the expenditure of $100,000 to implement recommendations in the Ross report and yet the opposition didn't know what these recommendations were.

"You better get a messenger and get the report and send it over to us right now," he said.

West Holds Firm As Peril Grows In Laos Issue

BANGKOK, Thailand—The Western powers Friday put up a firm front in a move to halt fighting in the Southeast Asian Kingdom of Laos and anxiously awaited a reply from Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

These steps came as a threat of another Korean-type war deepened with the pro-Western government of Laos reporting that troops from Communist North Viet Nam had crossed into Laos to join Laotian rebel troops in attacks against the already hard-pressed royal troops.

While both Britain and the United States left the door open for negotiation to end the fighting in Laos, there was strong evidence that the U.S. would not back down in the face of force.

Britain sent Russia a proposal for a cease-fire to be called in Laos and negotiations for a settlement be opened under a three-power commission with Canada, India and Poland as members.

The three-power commission was first set up by the 1954 Geneva conference to settle differences in Indochina.

NEW INTERVENTION
In Laos, Royal troops were reported to have withdrawn from the town of Kam Keut, 40 miles east of the Thailand frontier. The government announced nine battalions of North Vietnamese troops had opened a "massive new intervention" against the Royal troops.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy yesterday won the powerful support of neutralist Indian Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru in his efforts to get Kremlin acceptance of a truce in the boiling Laotian crisis.

Disclosure that Kennedy had sent a successful personal bid to the Indian leader came as Moscow sources reported that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev would discuss the Laotian situation with seven other heads of European Communist states Tuesday. A Red Chinese representative will be on hand as an observer.

LONDON (Reuters)—Britain said Friday there is a "good chance" Russia would accept its peace formula for Laos.

The Earl of Home, Britain's foreign secretary, expressed confidence that a political settlement will be reached before he leaves Sunday by air for a Southeast Asia Treaty Organization conference in Bangkok.

U.S. Fleet Tracks Sub
SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI)—The U.S. navy said yesterday the aircraft carrier Yorktown and several destroyers were searching for an object believed to be a submarine in the Pacific Ocean about 100 miles northwest of here.

During routine operations the unidentified water contact was picked up by the Yorktown, an anti-submarine carrier.

Sicilians Panic at Earthquake
'Worst Since Terror of 1908'

MESSINA, Sicily (AP)—Messina and Reggio Calabria were rocked Friday by the worst earthquake since the one that destroyed them both in 1908.

Walls cracked, cornices came crashing down, thousands fled in panic into the streets, but after the earth stopped heaving no casualties were reported.

This city of 192,000 population, a humming port and industrial centre, was the hardest hit by the series of nine jolts that began before noon and lasted more than 90 minutes.

Officials at Reggio Calabria, a port of 60,000 on the Italian mainland seven miles away across Messina Strait, reported less serious damage. But the panic there was the same.

Older residents of both cities could remember the damage by the earthquake of 1908, when 77,283 people perished.

The first shock struck with a force that knocked the needle from the Messina observatory seismograph.

Express Jumps Rails Killing 22 People

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP)—Twenty-two persons including seven schoolchildren were killed Friday when the Karachi Express jumped the rails at a crossing at Kotri.

A train-bus collision near the northern town of Jacobabad killed three and injured 25 bus passengers.

Reds Try to Choke UN in Congo With Money Noose

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The Soviet Union Friday opened a campaign to kill the United Nations Congo operation by chopping its financial lifeline.

Soviet delegate A. A. Roschin said the question of financing the Congo force should come under the 11-member Security Council—in which Russia has a veto—and not under the 99-member General Assembly.

REFUSED TO PAY
The Soviet Union has all along refused to pay any Congo costs and has demanded withdrawal of the force. Friday's blast was regarded as another attempt to bring down UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld.

Launching his attack in the financial committee, Roschin in passing charged that Hammarskjöld had usurped the functions of the security council by deciding what troops should be sent to the Congo.

RUSSIA OBJECTED
Hammarskjöld had sent Canadian, Swedish and Irish forces even though Russia as a member of the security council objected to the sending of forces from Western blocs, "for instance, Canadian troops."

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI)—Five West European diplomats yesterday were ordered expelled from Stanleyville by self-styled Premier Antoine Gizenga because the governments do not recognize his Soviet-supported regime.

REGINA (CP)—Defence Minister Harkness said Friday night it is the policy of the government that Canadian forces should not be required to face a potential enemy with inferior weapons.

But he added that no decision will be taken on acquisition of nuclear warheads "until a satisfactory agreement on joint control of such warheads" has been worked out with the United States.

He said the Bomarc anti-aircraft missile, Honest John artillery rocket and CF-104 low-level jet bomber have a nuclear capability "and they do not achieve their full potential without a nuclear warhead."

Mr. Harkness reiterated that the government has no intention of having nuclear weapons manufactured in Canada or of acquiring any kind of strategic nuclear weapon—such as a long-range missile or heavy bomber.

U.S. Prisoner Dying in East

HONG KONG (AP)—Robert McCann of Altadena, Calif., a U.S. prisoner in Red China, is dying of cancer and his wife is rushing to his side, U.S. consulate officials said here Friday.

Fleming Loss Far Short
Of Forecast

OTTAWA (CP)—With only one month left in the fiscal year Finance Minister Fleming's office Friday reported a $30,100,000 deficit at the end of February—well short of his forecast of a $286,000,000 deficit for the year ending March 31.

The sharp difference apparently means the government has some heavy spending to do before closing out its books.

No Inferior Weapons
For Canada—Harkness

Mr. Fleming refused to make any specific comment on the proposals but said "very thorough" discussions had been held on all aspects.

The ownership of the entire project would revert to B.C. after 50 years or at such time as the project was paid for, whichever is the sooner.

Asked if he was surprised at this part of the proposal Mr. Fleming told reporters: "In this political life one should never be surprised at anything."

The second proposal is outlined by Premier Bennett was: • B.C. would build and pay for the dams and facilities on its own.

• Ottawa would have full access to engineering data and "scrutiny and approval of all contracts" in the same manner as present Trans-Canada Highway projects.

"I came here in the hope that the discussions would facilitate the earliest possible start on the Columbia development and Premier Bennett has indicated quite clearly that it is his wish also," said Mr. Fleming.

Asked if he now felt Ottawa was wrong in suggesting that B.C. was trying to hold up the Columbia development, the federal minister said: "I trust there won't be any suggestion of a delay on anyone's part. Both sides are deeply interested in progressing."

• Ottawa would pay B.C. $4,000,000 for engineering studies conducted to date.

• Ottawa would guarantee "by appropriate financial measures" that the net cost of Columbia River power delivered to the Vancouver area would not exceed 4.25 mills.

• Ottawa would arrange with U.S. authorities, should any Columbia River power become surplus, to sell such power in the U.S. at a price not lower than 4.25 mills per kilowatt hour.

Ottawa has consistently stated that Columbia River power can be delivered in Vancouver for less than four mills. Now B.C. has given Ottawa extra leeway and told the federal authorities, in effect, to put up or shut up.

Finance Minister Fleming said later that the discussions will continue today.

B.C.'s first proposal was: • Ottawa would build the storage dams and transmission lines.

• Ottawa would pay "generous compensation" to those residents whose homes and property would be flooded.

• B.C. would receive the $64,000,000 U.S. payment for flood control indemnities and would keep this money forever, using only the interest payments.

• Ottawa would pay B.C. $4,000,000 for engineering studies conducted to date.
